NAZIS CLAIM FALL OF ROSTOV

Booming Marion Looks to Mansfield, Richland County To Send 2,500 Workers to Help Run Ordnance Plant

EDITOR'S NOTE: Startling as it may sound, the big army ordnance plant at Marion plans to take 2,500 men and women from Mansfield and Richland county to help turn out war materials. This is the third of a series of articles by John M. Schroeder, News-Journal city editor, comparing the status and future of Mansfield in a nation at war with those of other nearby cities.

By JOHN M. SCHROEDER
(News-Journal City Editor)

Could you conceive of 2,500 Richland county men and women being called to go to work in Marion?

Have you any idea what such a thing, if it happened—and it MIGHT happen—would do to Mansfield as a community, as a cog in the national economic machine? Have you any idea what taking that number of people out of Richland county would do to retail business, which has been taking some pretty stiff blows already?

It couldn't happen, you say? It's too fantastic to believe?

Well, it already has been happening. There are an estimated 800 Mansfield persons working in Marion today.

A total of 259 families have moved out of Mansfield to other cities since Jan. 1. There were 82 families which moved in over the same period. There are now in Mansfield about 280 vacant dwellings.

All this will continue to happen, and on a large scale—unless.

Unless what? Unless so many Mansfielders are engaged in necessary war work that there won't be 2,500 men and women available in this county when the Scioto ordnance plant at Marion wants them.

These are the facts:

Unless all available labor in Mansfield is at work on war jobs when the big Marion ordnance plant goes into operation, with anywhere from 12,000 to 20,000 employes, Mansfielders will be drafted into jobs there—that's provided for in the manpower draft.

There is already a plan set up in the United States Employment Service office in Marion—and the Mansfield USES office knows something about it, too—to try to get 2,500 workers from Mansfield and Richland county, 1,000 men and 1,500 women, for ordnance plant jobs.

But they won't take people already engaged in war work.

Let's assume for a moment that such a thing really happened, that 2,500 Richland county men and women took jobs at Marion. How long would they maintain residence here?

Unless the rubber situation eases a lot, they couldn't drive back and forth, because they wouldn't get tires. The Erie railroad runs between Mansfield and Marion, and could operate commuter trains. That's been thought of, and even planned on, in some quarters.

U. S. Planes In Caucasus Skies To Aid Defense

Reds Admit Only That Enemy Reaches Edge of City, Say Red Armies Making Last-Ditch Stand on Lower Don; British Lance Axis In Egypt.

(By Associated Press)

Germany proclaimed today that Rostov had been stormed and captured, although not yet mopped up, and Moscow reported that unprecedented numbers of United States-built planes—especially Douglas Boston bombers—had taken to the Caucasus skies to bolster Russia's fight for life.

The Hitler command announced capture of Rostov, capital of the northern Caucasus, on the main railway and pipeline which tap the oil and mineral wealth of the deep Caucasus, and the Russians, while not acknowledging the claim, said the battle had reached the city gates.

Quickly the Germans followed this up with an announcement that resistance by fresh Russian troops within the Don bend had been broken.

Moscow dispatches said, however, that Red armies had taken a last ditch stand on the lower Don and were developing a flank attack against the east wing of the German lodgement in the Tsimlyansk region, about midway between Rostov and Stalingrad.

From the wording of the Moscow communique the flank action was on a small scale, however.

The Red air force was still a power in the Caucasian skies, "inflicting continuous blows on enemy formations and communications," as the communique put it.

The Russian stand on the Don indicated a determination to hold the Tikhoretsk-Stalingrad railway which roughly parallels the course of the lower Don between Rostov and Stalingrad, an air line distance of 250 miles.

Tikhoretsk, south of Rostov, is at the junction of this railway and the north-south line from Rostov into the Caucasus. The Germans at their Tsimlyansk position were about 35 miles from the Stalingrad-Tikhoretsk link.

By German accounts, Rostov had been swiftly doomed. Two days ago the high command announced that its forces stood before Russian-defended bridgehead positions—evidently along the Axai river, a tributary of the Don enfolding Rostov on the north. Yesterday Berlin proclaimed that German and Slovak troops had forced the bridgeheads and reached the outskirts of Rostov.

Today's Moscow communique said Russian troops through the night had "fought the enemy in the areas of Voronezh and also in the areas of Tsimlyansk, Novocherkassk and Rostov. No changes took place in other sectors of the front."

That was the extent of the official Russian mention of Rostov although the communique described fighting in the Novocherkassk area, about 20 miles northeast of Rostov, near the bend of the Axai river.

"Our men repulsed attacks by numerically superior enemy forces," it said. "In one narrow sector alone the Germans lost 17 tanks and more than 800 men killed."

The German high command used a special communique to proclaim the capture of Rostov—an occasion calling for a minute-long trumpeting and rolling of drums on the German radio, Berlin's standard device to call at-

HULL SOUNDS CALL TO FIGHT

Urges All Freedom-Loving Peoples to Join War; Hints 'Peace Police.'

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — The United States is calling on all peoples who hope to keep their freedom, regain lost freedom or win new freedom to help defeat the Axis now.

Secretary of State Hull sounded the call last night in an address shortwaved to all countries — friends, foes, defeated nations and those still listed as rigidly neutral. He stressed that the conflict now raging is "not a war of nation against nation" but a worldwide fight by those who love freedom against would-be conquerors who seek to enslave all mankind.

Characterizing professions of neutrality in such a conflict as "absurd and suicidal" he pictured the worldwide war as a test of the caliber of nations and individuals.

"There is no surer way," he said, "for men and for nations to show themselves unworthy of liberty than, by supine submission and refusal to fight, to render more difficult the task of those who are fighting for the preservation of human freedom—unless it be to align themselves freely and voluntarily with the destroyers of liberty."

Then, in a sentence apparently aimed at the militarily helpless inhabitants of Axis-occupied countries, he added:

"There is no surer way for men and nations to show themselves worthy of liberty than to fight for its preservation, in any way that is open to them . . ."

Hull asserted that in this vast conflict the wholehearted support of Americans is dedicated to those who are:

1. Fighting for the preservation of their freedom.

4 New Tires, 6 Recapped Ones Stolen at Garage

Tire thieves continued their raids Thursday night, taking 10 new and recapped auto "shoes" from the Auxter Motor company, 220 Park avenue west, according to a report to Mansfield police.

Considerable damage was done to the top of a new car which was used as a working platform by the thieves, police said.

Four new tires were included in the loot, valued in all at $150. Six recapped tires were stolen.

"Car owners buying tires from private individuals," Police Chief T. M. Bell warned, "do so at their own risk. First of all, purchases should be made from established dealers. If not this, then the seller should be required to furnish a satisfactory history of the property."

Since rationing of tires was put in effect several thefts have been reported, the "tire-jackers" in some instances jacking up autos on sales lots to remove the rubber.

BOOSTS WAGES

Weirton Steel Adopts 44-cent Raise Ordered by WLB.

WIERTON, W. Va.—(U.P.)—The Weirton Steel company today adopted the wage formula laid down by the war labor board in the "little steel" case by granting a 44-cent-a-day wage increase to 10,000 hourly tonnage and piece work employes.

The company also granted a five per cent wage increase to 1,100 salaried employes retroactive to Jan. 1, 1942.

Mother On Stand In Spy Trial

Testifies In Washington, Collapses as She Faces Own Charge Later.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Mrs. Erna Haupt has testified in behalf of her son, Herbert Haupt, 22, the youngest of the eight Nazi saboteurs now on trial before a military commission in Washington, it was learned today as the hearing entered its 14th day.

Military sources made the disclosure following Mrs. Haupt's safe return to Chicago for arraignment on charges she aided and sheltered her son after he landed back in America aboard a German submarine. Mrs. Haupt collapsed at her arraignment.

Another witness for young Haupt was his uncle, Walter Wilhelm Froehling, who also is held by federal authorities in Chicago for aiding the spies. Haupt's father is in jail on the same charges, but he has not testified at the tral.

To date, three of the eight saboteurs have testified in their own behalf. The trial was in recess for a day yesterday, while defense attorneys, who had requested the delay, were off on a mysterious mission, possibly taking depositions from witnesses.

As the 14th day of the trial started, it still was a matter of speculation when the hearing would end. Best indications now are that it may drag out until next week.

The prosecution, which has demanded the death penalty for all eight of the saboteurs, is endeavoring to speed up the trial but the defense is using every legal weapon available to prolong it and present evidence that may let one or two spies escape the gallows or firing squad.

MERCY SHIP

Red Cross Prepares Food For Americans Held By Japs.

SAN FRANCISCO —(INS)— Local Red Cross officials revealed today that the Swedish steamship Kananagoora is being readied in San Francisco for a mercy shipment of food, medicine and other supplies for American prisoners in Japanese hands.

A. L. Schafer, Pacific area manager for the American Red Cross, said the ship is scheduled to call first at Kobe in Japan, then at Shanghai, Hong Kong and Manila.

Approximately 100,000 packages of food and large quantities of clothing and medicines have been ordered shipped to San Francisco preparatory to loading the cargo, Schafer said.

GETS ESTATE

Bettman's Widow Given All Property In 5-Line Will.

CINCINNATI —(INS)— Probate court attaches revealed today that the last will and testament of Supreme Court Judge Gilbert Bettman who died last week, is comprised of only five lines of handwriting in ink on stationery of the Ohio supreme court.

Dated May 26, the document left his unvalued estate to his widow, Mrs. Iphigene Molony Bettman.

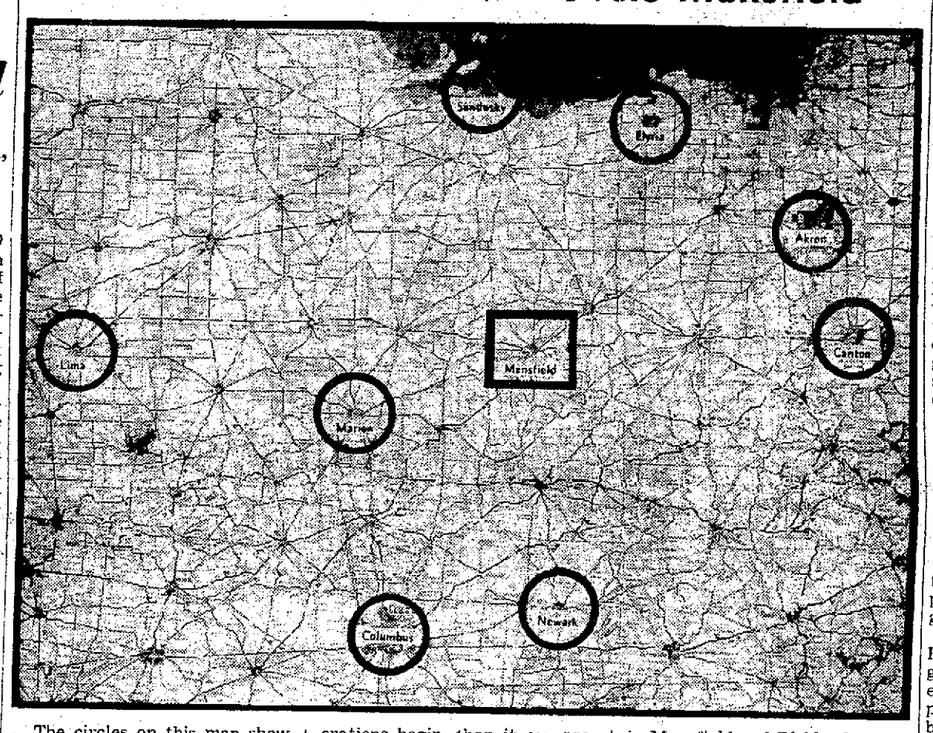
'ALERT' SET

Newark Civilian Defense Workers Practice Going to Posts.

NEWARK — (U.P.) — Newark's first daytime "alert" will be held Monday when Civilian Defense workers will be given several minutes of practice in reaching their stations, Major Charles W. Montgomery, coordinator for Civilian Defense, revealed today.

All traffic except cars operated by war workers will be halted.

How War Plant Cities Encircle Mansfield



The circles on this map show how Mansfield (in the square) is surrounded by cities with major war plants, all in need of workers, or soon to need them. Needing more, when operations begin, than it can provide itself, Marion, where the big Scioto Ordnance plant will employ from 12,000 to 20,000 persons, the United States Employment Service in Marion has planned to seek 2,500 workers in Mansfield and Richland county. Mansfield, the USES points out, has no such war plant, and is closest source of man power. However, USES does not plan to call on persons working on war jobs.

STILL HAVE OLD HOUSE NUMBER?

City Urges Mansfielders To Remove Them; Cites Fire Call Confusion.

Immediate removal of old house numbers, left on residences when Mansfield homes were renumbered two years ago, was urged today by Service-Safety Director Fred B. Wolff.

"When the changes were made, old numbers were left up to avoid confusion," Wolff said. "In most instances sheer sentiment results in two numbers appearing on a house today, while in others the cause is carelessness or neglect. It is felt that the new numbers have been in effect long enough for all to be familiar with them."

Citing an incident of Thursday, when firemen from No. 2 station were tangled up in efforts to locate a slight garage roof fire at 319 Wayne street, due to the existence of two sets of numbers, the director supported fire and police officials in their request that only the new numbers be displayed.

"Serious disaster could easily result from fire as the toll of such confusion," one fire official said.

150 Electricians Quit Ordnance Project In Fight Protest.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. —(U.P.)—Protesting the dismissal of one workman who allegedly fought with a guard, 150 electricians today staged a demonstration by quitting work on a unit of the new $30,000,000 ordnance plant here.

ISSUE 30 TAGS

Police Get One Return Showing Car Lights Were Fixed.

With more than 30 tags issued during the first two nights of the Mansfield police traffic department's campaign against improper lighting of motor vehicles, one had been returned today with the signature of the garage attendant who corrected the lights for the motorist.

Generally the offenses listed the charge of driving with only one headlight or without a tail light, according to Frend Boals, traffic commissioner.

Motorists are permitted a 48-hour period in which to correct the lighting faults and return the signed tag to the traffic bureau. Failure to comply will result in a court summons.

GAS STATION ORDINANCE VOID

Judge Grants Injunction To Block Enforcement; Says Law's Unconstitutional.

Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston today held Mansfield's filling station ordinance unconstitutional and granted the Standard Oil company of Ohio an injunction permanently restraining the city from enforcing it.

Voted early in June by city council, the ordinance limited the operaton of filling stations in the city to 72 hours a week. It was to have gone into effect July 7, Judge Huston granted a temporary restraining order June 30 to enjoin officials from enforcing it.

It was the second unsuccessful attempt of council to regulate filling stations in the city. An ordinance passed in March would have forced stations to close at 7 p. m. daily and 1 p. m. Sunday, but the Standard Oil company obtained an injunction against it before it be-

LACKS SUPPORT

U. S. Sales Tax Measure Favored By Only Few Senators.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — Senate sales tax advocates reported today that a private survey of sentiment in the finance committee revealed a lack of sufficient strength for adoption of the proposal in the new tax bill.

They said only "seven or eight" of the 21 member committee at present favor that method of obtaining more money for government's war needs. The pro-sales tax group includes Sen. Robert A. Taft (R., O.)

U. S. ACTS ON MEAT PUZZLE

Sets Up 3-Point Program To Relieve Shortage; Ration Plan Not Considered.

The threatened meat shortage which was beginning to make Mansfield meat dealers and housewives uneasy yesterday vanished today as agriculture department officials set up a three-point program expected to provide normal supplies of meat within a few days.

Department of agriculture officials emphasized that the eastern "shortage" is only temporary and that there is a record supply of meat on the hoof. No rationing of meat is contemplated for the near future, they added.

The shortage had extended as far west as Akron and a Mansfield packer said he was having trouble getting certain cuts of meat.

Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard announced the program last night after meat packers in several eastern cities complained that they were unable to buy live stock at prevailing high prices and sell dressed meat at ceiling prices established by the office of price administration.

Wickard's program calls for:

1. Reduction in prices effective next week to be paid for meat purchased by the government for the armed forces and for lend-lease shipment.

2. Establishment of a price differential favoring shipments to markets in the east.

3. Government subsidization of small packers. Lend-lease funds will be used.

The program does not provide for any changes in prices housewives will have to pay—those established by the OPA. But the reduction in government prices is

SWELL OUTPUT

U. S., Canada Report Big Jump In Munitions Output.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — The joint United States-Canadian war production board reported today that the annual rate of munitions production in this country for the second quarter of 1942 was nearly four times that of 1941, and that Canadian production in the second quarter was almost three times the 1941 rate.

Submitting its initial report to President Roosevelt and Canadian Prime Minister W. L. MacKenzie King, the board declared that even greater increases are called for under future production schedules of the two countries.

The report covered the first half year of the board's activities in coordinating the production of the two countries.

ENRAGED: Italians Wipe Out Yugoslav Town, Kill Populace

(By United Press)

LONDON—The Italians, enraged by the successes of Gen. Mikhailovitch's guerrilla armies, were reported today to have bombed the Yugoslavian town of Prozor to ruins, killing its men, women and children.

The Russians reported the destruction of Prozor, in southwest Yugoslavia, in a special communique. It said that General Mikhailovitch's war of liberation was growing in intensity, and that his forces firmly held a number of towns and villages and had repulsed every Italian attempt to recapture them.

In a single engagement, the communique asserted, patriots killed more than 300 Italians. Near the Italian-Yugoslav border, they have captured a number of localities on the railway line to Trieste, 30 miles inside Italy.

The Nazis and Italians continued to shoot and hang patriots in their efforts to stamp out resistance. Thirty-one new executions and condemnations to death were reported by Axis radio.

A German trans-ocean dispatch, broadcast by radio Paris, said three "terrorists" were shot in the yard of La Sante prison at Paris yesterday. The dispatch said they were shot for having stormed a grocery in Rue de Bucy, indicating that they were starving, rather than being "terrorists."

'WELCOME': Allied Fliers Hit Japs as They Occupy New Base

(By Associated Press)

GENERAL MacARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia—Before the Japanese could settle down in their newly-seized base on the southeast coast of New Guinea Allied airmen went to work on them yesterday, knocking out the third transport in three days, destroying shore installations and forcing frenzied invasion troops to leap wildly overboard from landing barges.

But despite the heavy cost the enemy went ahead with operations in the Gona Mission-Buna area, where a toehold was gained Wednesday, and a military spokesman indicated another small sea-borne Japanese force had been put ashore at Ambasi, 30 miles up the Papua peninsula coast from Buna.

Allied dive-bombers, used for the first time against land targets in New Guinea, and medium bombers made five separate raids on the Gono Mission-Buna area and a headquarters communique said they started numerous fires.

A 5,000-ton fuel-laden enemy transport was caught squarely amidship and set aflame. Previously two other transports were hit, and one of them sunk as the convoy moved down the coast from Japanese-held Salamaua.

Allied fighters in yesterday's attacks skimmed over the whitecaps to spray deadly machinegun bursts into troop-jammed landing barges and the pilots related that panic-stricken soldiers hurled themselves into the water to escape their fire.

Ashore, the fighters shot up machine gun nests and silenced an anti-aircraft battery. Other fighters pounced on a small enemy ship

Wheat Drops In Quality and Yield, Storage Problem Eased

Richland county's wheat harvest, a disappointment to farmers and grain dealers, was tapering off today and it appeared that there won't be any serious storage problem, after all.

Guy L. Taylor, Richland county AAA chairman, and Mansfield grain dealers said the quality and yield dropped far below the preharvest forecast. Most county farmers are holding the grain on their farms, apparently having no difficulty providing storage space for it.

One grain dealer said the wheat is testing four pounds below last year's good crop, and he estimated that he has handled less than 50 per cent of the amount of grain he received last summer.

One of the reasons farmers are holding the grain is that they can obtain $1.28 a bushel for it on loans and only $1.11 a bushel if they sell it. The government loans enable them to keep it indefinitely under seal and then turn it over to the Commodity Credit corporation if they are unable to repay the loan.

Although most of the county's combine owners have completed their harvesting, considerable wheat is still in the shock to be threshed. Threshing is not expected to be completed until sometime in August.

Taylor said two of the government bins set up at the Hanley mills in Mansfield have been filled and two more are ready to receive 5,000 bushels of wheat Monday. He said that six of the bins will be available in the county for storing wheat.

GERMANS CLAIM CAPTURE OF KEY TO CAUCASUS

Say Rostov Falls as American-Made Planes Sweep to Aid of Red Air Force.

tention to special victory claims and gain maximum audience.

"Troops of the German army, troops of the SS (elite Hitler guard) and Slovak units, supported in splendid manner by the air force, have broken through the entire front of strongly fortified and deeply echeloned positions of the defenses of Rostov and, after hard fighting, have captured the town by storm," said the announcement.

". . . Mopping-up of the remnants of the enemy in the town is continuing."

The Rostov situation and developing battles further up the Don valley, including a sharp menace to Stalingrad, an industrial center on the Volga where it elbows close to the Don bend, constituted a mighty threat to Russia's southern lifeline link with Allied forces in the Middle East.

This and a looting of the Caucasus treasure trove were Germany's major objectives.

At the other end of the Allies' Middle East line, in Egypt, British armored forces lanced at Axis forces on Alexandria's outlying defense line west of El Alamein while consolidating positions on the northern and central sectors in two days of sharp fighting.

The Italian high command announced, however, that the British Eighth army had lost about 1,000 in prisoners and declared that Axis detachments had occupied Siwa oasis, about 30 miles inside western Egypt from the Libyan border and some 100 miles inland from the Mediterranean.

The geography of the position and the fact that Siwa is on a caravan trail leading eastward to the Nile valley suggested the possibility of a strong Axis diversion there, away from the El Alamein line, or merely insurance by Marshal Rommel against a deep flanking attack.

The impassable Qattara depression which terminates the El Alamein line 40 miles from the coast, is skirted on the south by the Siwa trail to the Nile.

The Italians claimed 12 planes downed, three of them Curtisses, and said six were destroyed at Bengasi, Libyan supply port. Six more British planes were downed in air battles at Malta, the Italians added. The British admitted five losses in all operations and claimed six Axis planes downed in Africa and two at Malta.

In Britain, where American-British preparations may be under way for diversional relief of Russia, the German air force showed a markedly strengthened hand overnight, sending about 40 planes for scattered raiding. The Germans identified one target as the manufacturing town of Bedford, 40 miles north of London.

The forays, the strongest of many weeks, cost the enemy seven planes while the British were losing a like number in strong night attacks on objectives in Germany's industrial Ruhr and Rhine valleys and on railways, airdromes and other targets in occupied territory. The British added, that two of Germany's intercepting planes were knocked down.

The RAF's daylight campaign against nearer objectives across the channel in northern France was resumed at dawn.

The German high command identified the RAF's main night target as Duisburg, at the confluence of the Ruhr and Rhine rivers, a target of two nights previous, and said also that Russian bombers made new "ineffective nuisance raids" on east Prussia, losing one plane.

The German radio and news agencies pictured Berlin as overjoyed by the success at Rostov.

The Germans took Rostov last Nov. 21 only to lose it after brief occupancy.

Charge Soviets Bomb Swedish Island

STOCKHOLM — (INS) — The Swedish government officially charged today that Russian planes last night bombed Oeland island in the Baltic sea. A protest will be sent to Moscow.

Nazi Plane Set Afire Off Coast of Iceland

REYKJAVIK, Iceland —(AP)— A German Focke-Wulf, flames shooting from its engine, disappeared into the clouds after an offshore fight with a Royal Norwegian airforce plane yesterday afternoon, United States army headquarters said today.

The Norwegian patrol plane, a Northrup, sighted the German 15 miles off the east coast of Iceland, closed to 1,000 yards and opened fire. The Norwegians said they saw their machine gun bursts start a fire. The Norwegian plane was not hit.

This was the second time the Norwegians have engaged German planes in the Iceland area. A few months ago a German bomber escaped into a fog bank off the north coast after being hit.

HULL SOUNDS CALL TO FIGHT

Urges All Freedom-Loving Peoples to Join War; Hints 'Peace Police.'

2. Fighting to regain the freedom of which they have been brutally deprived, or

3. Fighting for the opportunity to achieve freedom.

Without specifically mentioning the acute tension in India over nationalist leaders' insistence on immediate independence, Hull said:

"We have always believed—and we believe today—that all peoples, without distinction of race, color, or religion, who are prepared and willing to accept the responsibilities of liberty, are entitled to its enjoyment."

The full measure of American influence, he added significantly, will be used to support attainment of freedom by "peoples who, by their acts, show themselves worthy of it and ready for it."

Those who think the short-cut to freedom lies in cooperation with Hitler or the Japanese warlords, he suggested, "need only look at the firing squads in Poland, Czechoslovakia, Norway, France, Yugoslavia."

He reiterated:

"There is no chance for liberty for any people anywhere save through the victory of free peoples . . .

"We shall send all the aid that we can to our gallant allies. And we shall seek out our enemies and attack them at any and every point of the globe . . .

"However long the road, we shall press on to the final victory."

After victory, Hull pointed out, will come the difficult period of transition from war to peace. During this period the United Nations must cooperate to provide quick relief for starving populations, to restore public order and a semblence of normal life in war-torn areas, he asserted.

To prevent a new outbreak of war, "it is plain that some international agency must be created which can—by force if necessary—keep the peace among the nations in the future." Such international cooperative action must include "adjustment of national armaments."

"It is equally clear," Hull added, "that in the process of re-establishing international order, the United Nations must exercise surveillance over aggressor nations until such time as the latter demonstrate their willingness and ability to live at peace with other nations."

British Approve Hull Statement

LONDON — (AP) — Secretary Hull's speech calling upon a liberty-loving peoples to help defeat the Axis drew expressions of keen interest and satisfaction from well informed British circles today.

There was no immediate official comment, but some sources linked Hull's words with Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden's declaration yesterday for post-war British and American cooperation. There was speculation over the implied warnings to neutrals.

"These two speeches are absolutely complementary," said one Briton. "They show that our leaders fortunately are in tune."

Japs Call Hull's Speech 'Old Stuff'

TOKYO — (From Japanese Broadcasts)—(AP)—The impression created among the people of Japan by U. S. HEADS OHIO'S HOME DEFENSE

Ralph Stone, Former Legion Commander, Promises Step-Up in Plans.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS—Ralph Stone of Ashtabula, today named acting director of the state defense council, promised to redouble efforts to build up civilian defense protective functions throughout the state.

"We now have about a third of the necessary trained civilian defense personnel," he said. "We will set up a special protection service in the state defense council to develop the protective functions."

The state defense council named Stone acting director as Courtney Burton, executive director since the council was organized, requested to be made an associate director with operations concentrated in the Cleveland area.

Burton indicated he planned to enter the armed forces soon.

Gov. John W. Bricker said the council would meet again Aug. 6 to hear a report of Burton's administration and to discuss future plans and policies.

"We feel Ohio with about 40 per cent of the nation's steel production in its borders is definitely a target area," Stone said. "We are going to ask all cities to redouble their civilian defense forces. This is our prime immediate task."

Stone also promised there would be "better service" to local defense councils and some additions to the state civilian defense staff including an increased number of field agents.

He indicated there would be a special head of the planned protection services.

Stone, commander of the Ohio Department of the American Legion in 1940-41, has been serving as director of volunteer services in the state defense council at a salary of $9,600. Bricker indicated his salary would be increased in the new position.

Burton has served for the last year as executive director without compensation.

W. J. Burns of Cleveland will continue as assistant director of the state council.

SOLDIER SHOT TRYING TO FLEE

Escape Attempt at Fort Hayes Fatal to Ohioan.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— John William Carl, 23-year-old soldier from Leesburg, was shot and killed today by a military guard during an attempt to escape from the army's Fort Hayes post here.

An official announcement said Carl, who was inducted into the army last Aug. 4, had attempted to desert twice previously. He was apprehended earlier this week near Hillsboro by Highland county Sheriff Cleo Shaffer, the announcement said.

In his latest attempt to flee, the announcement said, Carl was "shot and killed instantly" when he refused a guard's command to halt.

HOPES OTHER SCHOOLS WILL ADOPT IMMUNIZATION PROGRAM

Citing the increasing need for medical and nursing personnel for the armed forces, Dr. W. B. Wild, city-county health commissioner, expressed the hope that Mansfield parochial and Richland county public schools will adopt the diphtheria immunization program already endorsed by the city board of education.

Inoculation of Mansfield's school-age children before the opening of the fall term of the public schools was approved by the board Monday night.

"Lack of medical and nursing service," Dr. Wild re-asserted today, "virtually is a certainty for the coming winter, if an epidemic should break out. It is a question whether or not unskilled aid could cope with such a situation without a high toll of life."

Officials of the county educational system and of St. Peter's Catholic school have been contacted, Dr. Wild reported, but no assurance of what action will be taken has been received.

General Motors Says Plant Makes Them In Trainload Lots.

JAPS RECEIVE HOT 'WELCOME'

Allied Fliers Bomb Invaders as They Occupy Base In New Guinea.

north of Salamaua, itself 150 miles northwest of Buna.

Gona Mission, where the Japanese set up their first base on the Papuan peninsula, is a small settlement built around an Anglican mission. It was the enemy's first successful penetration southward toward Australia since the occupation of Salamaua and Lae last March.

Port Moresby, Allied base held by American and Australian troops, is 110 miles across the mountains, jungle-ridden peninsula.

Attack Heaviest Since Coral Sea

WITH UNITED STATES AIR FORCE IN AUSTRALIA—(U.P.)— The Allied bombing of the Japanese landing forces at Buna, New Guinea, was one of the biggest operations in this South Pacific area since the battle of the Coral sea, returning American airmen reported today.

"It seemed like hell let loose down there to beat the band," one crewman said as he described the attack against the Japanese forces that were put ashore three days ago at the isolated point 110 miles across New Guinea from the Allied post at Port Moresby.

The American airmen said that their bombs exploded a 10,000-ton Japanese transport and sent heavily-laden invasion barges careening into the air. They said that the Japanese suffered heavy casualties.

The crewmen of one bomber were grinning broadly when they climbed down from their plane, plainly pleased with their day's work.

"It was my first bombing mission, and we cleaned them up," Lieut. Robert M. Debord, a bomber pilot, said.

"We were on reconnaissance mission the day before when we sighted the Japanese convoy which then consisted of two 10,000-ton liners escorted by destroyers. They were proceeding down the Papuan coast towards Buna."

Debord kept the ship under observation until forced to return to his base. His crew rested while the ship was refuelled and they took off again for Buna.

Quickly they brought the Japanese transport under their bomb sight.

"Our bomb seemed to go right down the funnel," Debord said. "I've never seen a more intense explosion. The middle of the ship just seemed to erupt and disappear. Then it began blazing fiercely. The whole amidships was buckled and broken. She took a list to the port, then went down by the stern still burning fiercely.

"Other bombs landed among the barges. I saw several careening into the air with tiny objects, apparently the Japanese soldiers packed into the barges, flying in all directions."

Reports U. S. Fliers Raid Japs on Kiska

NEW YORK —(AP)— The Tokyo radio broadcast a Domei dispatch today in which a Japanese correspondent on Kiska island at the western end of the Aleutians reported that United States bombers were attacking Japanese forces there two or three times a day, dropping bombs through the fog.

The broadcast quoted the correspondent as saying that Japanese forces who have moved into barracks on the island suffered from loneliness and hardships and faced a bitter cold winter which would set in during September.

He reported that since the Japanese landing a month ago the Japanese had changed the name of the island to Narukami, and said roads were being built across the black treeless hills.

GAS STATION ORDINANCE VOID

came effective. Council repealed that ordinance in June when the new one was substituted for it.

Judge Huston handed down his decision today after a hearing that lasted about an hour. In his only defense of the measure, City Solicitor Leslie K. Wagner argued that it would limit the time station attendants would be required to work, giving them shorter hours.

Attorney C. H. Henkel of the law firm of Henkel and Gongwer represented the Standard Oil company as plaintiff. He contended that the city could not legally regulate filling stations as to their working hours and that the ordinance was unjustly discriminatory.

U. S. ACTS ON MEAT PUZZLE

Sets Up 3-Point Program To Relieve Shortage; Ration Plan Not Considered.

expected to result in slightly lower prices to meat growers.

Although the "shortage" which became pronounced in some sections only this week is expected to be relieved by next week, officials warned that unusual demands for meat in the normally slack livestock season would delay wholly normal supplies until the fall saughter season.

Price Administrator Lean Henderson has urged housewives to "squarely face" that fact and cautioned them to "buy carefully and buy less" if possible during the next six weeks.

Wickard's new program reduces prices the government will pay for lend-lease meats by one cent a pound in the Chicago area and by ¾ cent a pound in the east. The immediate result will be, Wickard said, that much meat now going to the government will be diverted to domestic consumption.

The part of the program calling for subsidies for small puackers will let those packers buy livestock at "prevailing market prices." The agriculture department will purchase the finished meat at a price that will assure the packers a profit, Wickard said.

Both parts of the program, he emphasized, are temporary and will end when the present shortage is relieved. The contracts with small packers will be for 60 to 90 days. Heavy livestock marketing by October is expected to make their continuation unnecessary.

GALION STRIKE GOES INTO 2ND DAY; 866 IDLE

North Electric and AFL Union Deadlocked In Wage Contract Dispute.

GALION—P. V. Prosser, chairman of the local union of the International Brotherhood of Electrical workers, said today that a committee representing the local is negotiating with the management of the North Electric Manufacturing company in an effort to settle a strike by production employes which started Thursday with picketing by the workers.

The walk-out affected 866 plant employes.

It is reported that the employes have demanded an hourly wage increase of approximately 15 per cent, plus adjustments in hours and vacations with pay.

The unauthorized strike was called after negotiations between the management and Local B-273, I. B. of E. W. (AFL) were deadlocked in a meeting Wednesday night.

Chief of Police Merle D. Gow said that there has been no disturbance during the day at the plant, although the second shift of workers, called in at 1:45 p. m made no attempt to cross the picket lines.

The company is one of the most important producers of automatic telephone communications, and it is expected that a government representative will investigate the walk out.

The strike affected only the main plant. The Mt. Gilead branch was not affected

Secretary Hull's Message of Hope

MUCH of Secretary of State Cordell Hull's 40-minute talk last night was directed to the people of other countries, to whom it will be re-broadcast in nine languages.

Little that he said was new to the reading and thinking people of the United States, but its reiteration in the words of the sincere and capable secretary of state has value at this time and his clear presentation of causes and purposes of American participation in the war should have a strengthening influence not only in this country but among people all over the world who are fighting for freedom or awaiting the day when they can again join in the battle.

Secretary Hull strongly emphasized the immediate task of winning the war. "There is no chance for liberty for any people anywhere," he said, "save through the victory of the free peoples. Never did a plainer duty to fight against its foes devolve upon all peoples who prize liberty and all who aspire to it."

But it was in looking toward the peace which is to follow war that Mr. Hull devoted greatest attention in setting forth a pattern of co-operation and helpfulness designed to spread freedom and the right of self-government throughout the world.

"With victory achieved," he said, "our first concern must be for those whose sufferings have been almost beyond human endurance."

Considered in its entirety, Secretary Hull's address may be considered a message of hope and assurance to the people of America and the United Nations, as well as to the millions in other countries who have been made to suffer from Axis tyranny and brutality.

But, as he said, the first great task is to win the war—and that task is still far from completion.

Questions About Teachers' Union

RECENT mention of preliminary steps having been taken to organize Mansfield public school teachers into an affiliate of the American Federation of Labor has brought several questions on this subject which indicate that many of the teachers are as much in the dark in this matter as are school authorities and the public.

One query from teachers is whether union membership will be compulsory, under "closed shop" rules similar to those which require payment of large initiation fees as qualification for employment in war industries, or whether individual teachers can do their own deciding.

For the present, the answer to this question is that teachers are entirely free to decide whether or not they shall join the union. Just now the movement to organize Mansfield teachers is in such an early stage, with so few teachers as the impelling force, that no element of compulsion has become involved.

It would not be until later, if sufficient strength can be gained by promoters, that direct or indirect compulsion would probably enter the picture, by which time it would be too late to do much about it.

Another question, from the public viewpoint, is to what extent, if any, labor union affiliation by school teachers would influence their teaching, and whether unintentional bias might not result in indication of A. F. of L. preference over the CIO, and the like.

Request by the board of education for a considerable increase in the budget for school operation next year, coupled with recent salary increases for all teachers, makes the whole subject of school maintenance one of lively public interest—and the proposal to organize teachers into a labor union has apparently increased that interest.

One Picture That All Should See

SOME people see many motion pictures, others see only a few. Some go to a picture show "to put in the time"—others have difficulty in finding time to see an occasional picture and are careful in their choice of those to be seen.

Once in awhile there is a truly great picture—one that should be seen by everybody.

Such a picture is "Mrs. Miniver," which comes to Mansfield tomorrow for showing at the Ohio theater.

While there may be no "complacency" in the attitude of people of the United States toward war, there is also little realization of the reality of war's destruction as it has been visited upon other countries.

It is the frightful ordeal of the British people that is vividly portrayed in the motion picture version of Jan Struther's novel, "Mrs. Miniver." Attention is concentrated on men and women of a little English village who saw their homes destroyed, members of their families killed and their lives left in ruins, but who held their heads high and never whimpered.

It is the life story of a small segment of people at war—people who become very real and admirable as the story unfolds . . . with a vein of humor that effectively points up the theme of the production.

Epitomizing the sentiment of the picture is the brief but powerful sermon delivered at the close of the picture by the village vicar. He says:

The homes of many of us have been destroyed and the lives of young and old have been taken.

There's scarcely a household that hasn't been struck to the heart.

And why? Surely you must have asked yourselves this question.

Why, in all conscience, should these be the ones to suffer? Children, old people, a young girl . . . at the height of her loveliness.

Why these? Are these our soldiers? Are these our fighters? Why should they be sacrificed?

I shall tell you why.

Because this is not only a war of soldiers in uniform, it is a war of the people—of all the people—and it must be fought, not only on the battlefield, but in the cities and in the villages, in the factories and on the farms, in the home and in the heart of every man, woman and child who loves freedom!

Well, we have buried our dead . . . but we shall not forget them.

Instead, they will inspire us with an unbreakable determination to free ourselves and those who come after us from the tyranny and terror that threatens to strike us down.

This is the people's war! It is our war! We are the fighters! Fight it, then! Fight it with all that is in us! And may God defend the right!

Said to appear on a Mitchel Field (L. I.) bulletin board: "Lieutenant colonels of the Air Corps who are less than 21 years old will not be served at the bar unless accompanied by their parents."

It is reported that Americans are beginning to walk to improve their health—but it's rumored that the tire shortage is also a contributing influence.

Difference Seen In U. S. Attitude

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—If there's the least bit of American sentiment in opposition to all-out Yankee war participation it certainly isn't mentioned by any candidate for a senatorial or a representative's seat at the coming election. That is, there's no mention of any such thing except as a treasonable manifestation deserving of isolation in an internment camp or of extinction by a firing squad.

There's no doubt in my own mind that the congressional aspirants all are perfectly honest in their utterances concerning the pending conflict.

It's true that a few of 'em were skeptical, before Pearl Harbor, of the wisdom of administration policies which, in their opinion, were calculated to involve us in the world struggle a bit unnecessarily. They're ardent 100 percenters now, however. In fact, they generally are rather extra-vehement, perhaps partly with a view of obliteration of their earlier semi-clamminess from public memory.

As remarked above I haven't a suspicion that one of these chaps is a particle less genuinely enthusiastic than anyone else for the Axis' defeat.

If there were such an exception, though, he'd be far from admitting it—not with his chances at the polls in mind, and he wouldn't be campaigning for himself if he didn't want to win.

Not a Protest.

The truth is that American sentiment is materially more solidly back of a whole-hearted prosecution of World War II than it was back of No. 1. I don't mean to imply that there was much dissent that time either. Still, an occasional unsympathetic chirp was heard then. There isn't a peep at present, except as currently imported by a dozen or so of spies and saboteurs.

Why the difference?

I'm inclined to think it's because of the difference between the kaiser and Herr Hitler.

Bill Hohenzollern was no lovable character, to be sure. Nevertheless, he had some germs of education and civilization in his system. He was taken as a certain sort of established institution, too. He'd had some "bringing up." It took him some time to disabuse folks' minds of the idea that he was human.

Adolf is an immediately-recognized louse. He's accepted as a degenerate—a cheap skate, raised to the n'th power. Nobody has to argue, belatedly, that that's what he is. It's conceded in advance.

His affiliation with the Japs doesn't help him, though neither does it hurt him. Nothing could do that.

Benito Mussolini doesn't signify; he's zero.

Of course the French are like the other conquered countries; we'll co-operate with 'em and the rest of the vanquished bunch for all they're worth.

It isn't alone an American situation. It's PAN-American. In 1914-18 our sister new world republics mostly were middling cool toward us. Today, except a couple of 'em, they're aligned with us—and those two are drifting our way.

And China!

As for the Germans? In 1914 a good many allowances were made for 'em. The notion was that the kaiser was a matter of habit with 'em. But is Hitler a HABIT? Or is he what they LIKE? If the latter's the case, it's hard not to be suspicious of them foreverafterward. Yet it's difficult to regard 'em askance, dating back to the era of Karl Schurz.

How Competent?

There's one little thing to be taken into consideration.

We want our whole effort back of the war, of course.

But is it being conducted COMPENTENTLY?

That's a legitimate query—and it's raised.

Let Us Not Forget

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

SOME TIME AGO I wrote an article about us Old-Timers.

Most folks think that columnists are just wise crackers, young smarties who get by with clever quips.

But they're wrong. You don't get a column until you've lived one . . . until you've earned one with gray hairs and callouses and tears. And so when I wrote about Old-Timers I spoke from the truth and the pain in my own heart. You can't imagine that pain until you're facing age yourself . . . you don't know what it means to be 18 inside your spirit, with all your old fire and zest . . . and 58 or 68 in your years, with the wrinkled flesh that seems like a phoney mask.

FOR YOU NEVER GROW OLD IN YOUR HEART, AS YOU'LL LEARN AS YOU GO ALONG.

And now, facing this World War No. 2, there are so many of us who remember the fury and terver of 1917, yet must sit on the benches as the big parade goes by, the parade of youth in which we have no part. And yet we know that we once had a part—a glorious part—in making history. And we know, too, that we have a place today in defending that America for which we fought.

Thinking of these things, I wrote about us Old-Timers. And letters have come back to me which I shall never forget....letters from the men and women who made yesterday in this U. S. A.....They are not sensational letters. Simple records of men who gave up their personal ambitions that their country might live.

It's so easy to forget them now. So easy to think that America depends entirely upon its buoyant, reckless youth. But these men were young in their time, too, and as reckless as any lad that marches today in China, Australia, Libya or Russia. We owe our lives to the youth they gave, to their recklessness and loyalty. Let us not forget the debt we owe.

Here's one of the letters from such an Old-Timer:

"Dear Elsie Robinson:

"You certainly said a mouthful when you wrote to us Old-Timers, and when you said 'has-beens, it's hard to take.' I am one of those has-beens though I'm 64 years young. I enlisted in 1898 in the 4th Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry and served under fire in Puerto Rico. After being discharged, I enlisted in the U. S. Marine Corps for five years. Sent to Cavite, Philippine Islands — served under fire. After the P. I. insurrection I volunteered for the Moro uprising in the southern part of Mindanao Island in the Philippines. I returned to Cavite and volunteered for sea duty in the China Boxer Rebellion. Was sent home and discharged after serving my five years. I was only out a short time, then enlisted in the U. S. navy.

"Paid off after my enlistment and got married. Lost my wife in '21—two children grown up and married. Now it is only me and my suit case. I tried to enlist for Coast Guard service in San Francisco, nine years sea experience, turned down on account of my age. I tried the Marines in Los Angeles, turned down again. Age limit to serve in the U. S., 50 years.

"Once I, too, marched in parades and heard them applaud, but now I sit on the benches in the Capitol park in Denver but no one notices me or the button on my coat.

"But I have one great satisfaction, and that is, I am glad that I am an American. I've managed to save enough to buy a $50 War Bond and some stamps out of my pension. So after all is said and done, what the hell, Bill—what the hell!

"Harry J. Weber,
"No 7 East 19 Ave,
"Denver, Colorado."

No, Harry, not "what the hell," but WHAT THE GLORY! Yes, you think no one remembers, no one cares. But you're wrong, pal. It's true, we seem indifferent and ungrateful. But all America is following the trail you made. All America is rejoicing in and fighting for the freedom you saved. They may not know your name, this younger generation. But they are following your lead. They are following the trail that Harry Weber broke and fortified way back in 1898. And as long as the Stars and Stripes shall wave, Harry Weber's spirit and the spirit of all those who fought with him will go marching on.

AMERICA THANKS YOU, JOHNNY DOUGHBOY!

Large Scale Naval Action Needed To Clear Aleutian Islands of Japs

—By DE WITT MACKENZIE

PUBLIC CONCERN over the continued Japanese occupation of Aleutian islands appears to have mounted rapidly during the past few days, and increasingly one hears the question of just why it is that the invaders of American soil haven't been evicted.

Representative Coffee of Washington added fuel to the fire when he demanded that forces be sent to oust the Japs immediately. And Alaskan Delegate Dimond, who has complained that we are being too complacent in this matter, says he has received reports that between 20,000 and 25,000 Japanese troops have been landed in the Aleutians already.

This growing anxiety undoubtedly has been stimulated by the knowledge that the Nipponese occupation of Aleutian bases not only threatens Alaska but is intimately connected with the possibility of an attack against Russian Siberia at this crucial time when the Reds are fighting for their lives (and ours) at the gateway to the Caucasus.

A collapse of the Bolshevist defenses in the present fierce battle might inspire the Japs to repeat their favored trick of striking without warning. The Aleutians of course lie close to Russian soil and cut across our line of communication with our ally.

There certainly is an answer to the continued presence of the enemy on the three westernmost islands of Attu, Kiska and Agattu, but I doubt if it is what the reader would expect. One well known reason is that the weather over the Aleutians is about as filthy as you can find, and it has been bad lately. Dense fogs have shielded the Japs from air or sea attacks.

However, I believe that a more vital reason why we haven't taken stronger action is that we simply haven't had the naval force to spare.

That may seem like strong mustard, but the position is quite understandable. The ousting of the Japs is essentially a naval task.

The navy can't be expected to undertake such a mission with a handful of ships; the job calls for a very considerable force. Thus far we haven't been able (or so I believe) to mass enough ships for the operation. Still, that, shouldn't cause public surprise. We possess the ships all right, but they are spread out over the seven seas, performing mighty tasks to keep the wheels of the Allied war machine turning.

And why don't we call in some of these ships and clean out the Aleutians? Presumably because the authorities, fully aware of the danger of the Jap occupation, realize that danger is less pressing than other perils which have to be met.

The threat from the Japanese occupation has increased since they first scrambled onto one of the barren isles. But there has been no confirmation, however, of the report that 25,000 of the enemy have been landed. That figure seems far too large, for the simple reason that it would require a much bigger operation than the Nipponese appear to have performed to install and supply so many men.

It's safe to say, though, that the Japs are busy consolidating their small holdings—laying out air-fields and so on. They will have to be wiped out as soon as possible, and without doubt this will be done. Meanwhile our airmen are keeping them hammered down where they belong among the rocks.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — Capital madhouse:

A few months ago, he was making nearly $100,000 a year as a Wall Street executive and director of several corporations. Now he is a government official, laboring in the war effort.

"I used to think all those stories about confusion on the Potomac were just flights of reportorial fancy," he said as he sat down at the table. "But, man, did I find out.

"THREE weeks after I arrived in town and had been given an office, a push-button, two secretaries and nothing to do, a friend arrived from New York and tried to find me. He called the WPB, the OEM, Lowell Mellett's information bureau, the White House and the Treasury. They all said, 'I'm sorry but he doesn't work here.' They were right, in a way.

"I never have learned the names of my secretaries. It's not worth the effort. I come to work in the morning and there's a strange young lady at one of the desks. I look at the number to be certain I'm in the right office. Then I look at the young woman again. 'I'm the new secretary,' she says.

"And when I ask what became of the old one, nobody knows. One day I came back from lunch and had two new ones.

"One morning, I came to work early—I couldn't sleep—and I had a new office. The only trouble was nobody could tell me where it was located. It was four o'clock in the afternoon before I found it.

"Man, when you call up a government official and his girl says, 'I'm sorry, he's in conference,' you believe her. This is a conference government.

"They are easy to describe, because they are all alike. One official says, 'Joe, what do you think about the price of tenpenny nails in Timbuctoo?'

"Joe doesn't think anything about anything, but he'll take it up in the conference that is going to be held day after tomorrow and he'll let us know at the first conference held next week.

"HENRY throws the conference into consternation by announcing that he has something very definite on the girdle and garter situation. It is that at Tuesday's conference he is going to get the preliminary figures on a preliminary survey. He'll send around the preliminary girdle and garter figures at that time and after a period of deliberation, we can discuss preliminary plans at the first conference following.

"After a couple of hours of this, the conferees fly blind through tobacco smoke until they find the door beam and rush off to see what each drew in the way of new secretaries."

(Author's note: The above is almost a verbatum report of a new government war official, who for obvious reasons must remain nameless. It really isn't that bad, but the poor fellow had just come from a conference. A week later, I was in his office and he was working like fury and he had learned the names of both secretaries. One had been with him ten days. The other was a veteran of two weeks.)

Man About Manhattan

'This Is the Army'

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Irving Berlin has written 14 Broadway musical shows. He has composed 800 songs. Some of these songs have been tremendous hits and others have fared less well. He has been in a war and he has been hungry and he has banged a piano in low waterfront dives. Naturally his emotions have wandered from high exultation to the lower registers of doubt and confused dispair.

The other night the most ballyhooed show of his career opened. It was "This Is the Army," put on by Uncle Sam for the benefit of Army Emergency Relief.

AFTER it was over Berlin and high ranking army officers and their staffs gathered in a hotel suite to talk things over. It was the army's first venture into big time theatrics. Said Berlin: "We sat around and talked just like a bunch of producers and actors. It was Broadway talk. Trade talk. No army talk at all. General Searles and General Phillipson and General Terry were there.

The thought uppermost in everyone's mind was morale. What would the show do for the army? What would the reviews be like? While the first performance was on we got Warner Brothers' check for $250,000 as first payment on the movie rights. Somebody thought it would be a good idea to go out before the footlights and show the check to the audience. But General Searles said, 'Let's not talk about money tonight.' He was right. I stuck the check in my pocket and we went on with the show. I saw the first half of the show from the audience."

After this opening I asked Irving Berlin what his reactions were.

"They were ones of inexpressible relief," he said. "This show had been ballyhooed to the skies, It had been called a tremendous hit long before it opened. If it hadn't lived up to expectations I would have been sick. I would positively have been ill. But there wasn't a hitch. I asked the army if there was anything they would care to change or alter, if there was anything lacking in taste. They said "Nothing. Not a single word, or line, or scene."

* * *

AT THE same time that "This Is the Army" was in process Berlin was also hip deep in "Holiday Inn," a motion picture with Bing Crosby and Fred Astaire based on the noted holidays of the year. Each holiday is represented by a song. Only one old song is in the show—"Easter Parade" for Easter. The new songs composed for the other holidays are these: For New Years Eve—"Let's Start the New Year Right" . . . For Lincoln's Birthday, "Abraham." . . . For Valentine's day, "Be Careful—It's My Heart." For Washington's Birthday, "I Can't Tell a Lie." . . . For July 4th, "Song of Freedom." . . . For Thanksgiving, "Plenty To Be Thankful For," and for Christmas, "White Christmas."

'It Gets Around'

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

COMPARATIVELY few persons who write for the newspapers will admit they are as green as I. All I pretend to know is just what "gets around" out in the country. But since I am contributing to several respectable publications I often find myself, whether I mean to or not, listening to what people have to say about the American free press. So here's the latest gossip from our bend of the river—take it or leave it....

"My favorite portion of the paper is the comics," a local doctor told me. "A man knows before he starts that they aren't true!"....

"Don't ask me how to run the world," a busy farm wife said. "I never read the papers—they make me dizzy."....

"Newspapers all come out of the same tin cans, only the publishers mix 'em differently," remarked a sidewalk acquaintance. "I'm not kicking, understand—if I ran a newspaper I'd use canned stuff, too. That has to be edited and inspected before it's put up, and it saves the local staff a heap o' work."....

Said an old man, "I've read the same newspaper for 37 years. It's like a friend. I'd be lost without it. It keeps me posted, and the editorial pages always give me a lift. Folks who write it will never know how much good they're doing."

"Oh sure—I read the funnies and the feature sections," remarked a high school miss. "The continued story is good, and I look at the pictures to see what society girls are wearing. I read the columns, too, if there's conversation in 'em."....

"I suppose I am a column fiend," remarks an aged lady confined closely to her home by a lame foot. "I like to have outside interest, and I know the columnists, although they never heard of me."

And that's the American farm and village reaction to their home town daily! "I read it in the papers" becomes a meaningful phrase to call classes and ages. Newspaper circulations are at a new high. The people are entertained, inspired, led outside their own narrow sphere — amused, prodded, made mad and made happy by turns. And if you can think of something else that ought to be said, sit right down now and write a letter to the editor!

DESCRIBES TRIP THROUGH FOG OF ALEUTIAN AREA

Writer Tells of 3,000-Mile Journey to U. S. Outposts In North Pacific.

(Editor's Note: This is another in a series of stories by Keith Wheeler, Chicago Times' correspondent in the Aleutian Islands. Wheeler, first accredited correspondent to reach Alaska, is attached to the U. S. fleet. He arrived in Alaska shortly after the Japanese attack on Dutch Harbor June 3.)

By KEITH WHEELER
(Copyright, 1942, Chicago Times)

SOMEWHERE IN ALASKA (Delayed)—This is the record of a 10-day 3,000-mile trip out along the Aleutian battlefront to Kiska island and return.

Americans are living and fighting in the Aleutians—and the Aleutians are American soil. They are fighting and dying there to stop an invader, threatening their home land, itself.

They lead a brutally hard, cheerless and dangerous life. They have pared living down to its essentials. They sleep and eat—when such necessary luxuries are available—in tents and burrows in the soggy tundra. They fight in airplanes, flying in weather that at its mildest would keep any peacetime plane nailed to the ground.

The islands they cling to are desolate and savage.

The trip began from a nameless base on the southern shore of the great peninsula.

We started in a Catalina flying boat, banking steeply to avoid a jutting cliff and levelling off across a 1,000-foot pass so low the scrubby fire trees almost scraped the big boat's hull.

We turned westward and set a course down the peninsula. I saw the sun only once again in nine days.

The wet cold of the islands soon bit into me, an emergency solved by shoving a pile of miscellaneous gear off a bunk and climbing into an eiderdown sleeping bag.

Five hours later the gunner shook me awake and told me to get up because we were ready to land. We were outside Dutch Harbor, he said.

I scrambled back through the plane to the gun blisters and looked out into a gray wet world in which the only distinguishable features were the darker gray waves directly beneath. There was no land, no sky, nothing but fog.

"Who knows it's Dutch Harbor?" I yelled.

"The navigator," he grinned. "He's never missed yet."

But we didn't land. We cruised in circles for an hour but the rocky harbor entrance was so choked with fog that we couldn't get in.

Two hours later under a lowering sky we slipped into a desolate bay and landed. The big boat hit the water with a ripping sound as though she had come down in wet concrete.

The radioman scrambled into the gun-bay with a signal lamp and soon a motor whaleboat came buckling through the seas to pick us up.

I went ashore to acquire as vivid a memory as I shall ever have. The boat put me within reaching distance of a 50-foot ladder up the cliff and I scrambled up while a fiendish wind tore at my borrowed raincoat and threatened to jerk me back to the water.

At the top I saw the tundra for the first time, a humocky morass that looks like land God plowed experimentally and then wisely decided to throw away. That bleak, treeless plain under a sky as heavy as heartbreak was filled with American airplanes, trucks, shacks, tents and American fighting men.

In a lantern lit shack I found a field telephone and soon a truck driven by a cheerful kid from Texas came jouncing over the tundra to get me.

"This is a hell of a place," I told him.

"Well, it ain't Texas," he admitted. "But you get used to it."

We halted alongside a cluster of brown- sod-banked tents and he led me to one. It had no floor and no light. A couple of cots and a heap of muddy gear filled the interior. This was headquarters and home for the squadron skipper, he said.

In the darkness we stumbled down an incline into the ground, passed through a rough board door and found ourselves in an underground chamber walled wtih scrap lumber. A typewriter's clack and the nervously hissing spark gap of radio greeted us.

The skipper, a tired, sandy haired man clad in a weird assortment of army and navy winter clothing, greeted me, pumped me eagerly about the war in the southern Pacific, arranged my further transportation and sent somebody to find me a bunk for the night.

That night we slept in a tent and by morning another 70-knot wind had the canvas cracking like gunfire while rain slatted through the flaps.

The wind abated during the day and we got away in a Cat amphibian.

This day the weather was clear for an hour and we passed Mount Shishaldin's smoking, snow blanketed spire in bright sunlight. Few have ever seen that awesome peak, for almost always it is wrapped in fog.

We made Dutch Harbor that day after challenging three aircraft en route. Each time an unidentified speck appeared near us the gunners unstrapped their guns, opened the blisters and waited until the plane was identified. It was not many days since the Japs had appeared here and there was no guarantee they wouldn't come again.

That night there was dinner at a table and there was a bath, a luxury appreciated no less because the water has a quality of turning brick red when heated.

Next day we were off again, heading for the makeshift outpost from which the Kiska bombers jump off. We found that almost a repetition of our first dispersal point—with several important differences.

Our new tents had floors and fires, but the food supply here consisted only of canned sausage, canned cornbeef and canned salmon. It is not difficult to learn to hate salmon.

Here was no tundra, but real grass and wild violets as large as half dollars. Here, too, a few quanset huts varied the canvas skyline. A quanset hut is an igloo of corrugated iron and if you've been living in a tent under perpetual rain a quanset is palatial.

The mud as always, was knee deep. Whenever the rain stopped for two hours altogether, some alchemy of Alaskan soil and weather converted a good share of mud into a choking dust cloud that floated over the plain.

That night I shared a tent with eight PBY aviators, some who had lived through weather crackups and others who had shot down Jap planes and had been shot down. The oldest was 28, the youngest not more than 20.

Next morning I would fly to Kiska in a B-17 and they were going out on patrol flights that would keep them aloft in the soup for as many as 20 hours.

The trip to Kiska might have been a nightmare but was actually a miracle of aerial navigation. The big bomber took off, circled once and ducked under the sea-hugging fog. For hours thereafter we saw no land, nothing but the fog pressing down and a narrow circle of water racing along below us. We saw no land until we pulled through the soup and found the rocky beak of our target rearing through the murk a few miles away.

Lieut. John A. Leppla (above) of Lima, O., got a chance to prove that a dive-bomber can defeat an enemy fighter plane, when he and his rear gunner, John Liska, 19, of Van Nuys, Calif., shot down seven Jap Zero fighters on two successive days in action in the battle of the Coral sea. The dive-bomber was one of a squadron based on the American aircraft carrier Lexington, which was sunk in the battle.

Girl Quits Office To Make Good as Plane Mechanic

NEW YORK —(INS)— A 14-cylinder, 1,600 horse power Wright Cyclone airplane engine may be a mystery to you, but just a push-over for Miss Betty Jane Travis, of Forest Hills, L. I.

Betty is a mechanic's helper for Pan American Airways at LaGuardia field, one of 55 girls so far hired by the company to do men's work.

For the last two months she has worked in the jig assembly plant with several dozen men, doing equal work in servicing the engines from trans-ocean clippers. She finds it more pleasant than the bookkeeping job she formerly held.

Miss Travis' new work involves hundreds of minute operations on the plane engines, which are serviced after each flight. The motors are lifted from the clipper and fitted to large stands, called jigs, where the ground crews replace or repair wire, cables, conduits, deicers, oil line, feed line and, as Miss Travis says, "oodles of things."

A good resolution affords the maker great consolation, even though it lasts only five minutes.

Florida Boasts Oldest Civilian Flying Officer

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — (INS) —At 66, George W. "Pop" Dolliver, retired oil company executive, is the oldest Civil Air Patrol flying officer in the United States and possibly the oldest war-duty flier in the world.

Dolliver did not learn to fly a plane until he was 62. He was over-age for combat flying during the first World War.

Winning his pilot's license at the same time as did his son, Bertram, 43, father and son joined up together when the Civil Air Patrol was formed here. "Pop" was made commander of Flight F of the St. Petersburg Squadron, Third Group of Florida.

Dolliver flies an Aeronca, the only privately-owned seaplane at the St. Petersburg airport. The plane weighs only about 700 pounds, and has a 40 horsepower motor. It cruises at 80 miles an hour and "Pop" fishes from it here and on trips to the Gulf Coast keys and Florida's fresh water lakes.

Mansfield, Richland County Seen Source Of Labor for Marion

USES Office In Marion Hopes to Get 2,500 Men and Women From This City and County to Help Operate Ordnance Plant, Unless They're All Engaged In War Work.

But if you had to be at work at 7 a. m. in Marion, and lived in Mansfield, how would you like commuting?

Marion's 40 miles from here. That would be an hour's ride on a train. That would mean leaving Mansfield at 6. That would mean getting up around 5.

If you worked eight hours, you'd be through at 3. An hour's ride back to Mansfield would make it 4. Allow 15 minutes to get home after you reach Mansfield.

It makes a pretty long day, doesn't it?

You might stand that for a while, but then you'd finally figure that it would be simpler to live in Marion, close to the job.

So you'd move—and when the government plans a plant the size of the Scioto ordnance plant, it also provides housing for workers. Perhaps not the most luxurious housing in the world. But war's no luxury. And we're in a war.

As far back as last March, Marion started looking in this direction for men and women to work in the Scioto plant. After surveying the field, the USES estimated that it would need 2,500 men and women from Mansfield and Richland county.

In a plant employing from 12,000 to 20,000 persons, a city the size of Marion couldn't be expected to provide all of them.

Why schedule this county to provide 2,500?

Listen to the explanation of Fred B. Scherff, manager of the Marion district office of the USES. If you do the picture is fairly easy to see.

Get out a map of Ohio, he suggests. Draw a circle around Marion. Draw another around Sandusky, another around Lima, around Columbus, and Newark.

Why? All of those cities have major war plants, and are going to need men and women to run them. Where do you find Mansfield?

You find Mansfield just about encircled by new war plants, all needing all the help they can find at home—and then some.

"It stands to reason," Scherff says, "that with the Lima defense plant to the west of us, Sandusky's Plum Brook plant to the north of us and the Columbus Curtis-Wright plant to the south of us, that we will have to turn east if we are to obtain the needed number of workers.

"Those other plants are drawing labor from a radius within 44 miles of Marion."

Turning east means Mansfield and Richland county and beyond this city.

When the labor draw is needed, why so much from Mansfield?

Turning to the map again, Bucyrus and Galion are the only two cities of any size between Mansfield and Marion. Both cities are busy with war production and so far have needed all the workers from their own communities.

Then, looking at the map again, this time beyond Mansfield, you'll notice that to the east, northeast and south of Mansfield are Canton Akron and Elyria.

All of them have war plants, most of them operating at full blast. They are drawing heavily on available labor in their own territories.

Building of Newark's big plant starts Aug. 1

That leaves Mansfield and Richland county literally hemmed in with war plants and industrially busy cities—but no major war industry of its own.

Furthermore, the USES offices, both here and at Marion, have been notified that the federal program is designed to prevent mass migration of workers from one state to another.

That means that it is the federal plan to draw as many workers as possible from the immediate vicinity of war plants.

Mansfield industries engaged in war production won't feel the labor movement toward Marion, if the plans of the U. S. Employment Service are successful.

The Marion district manager emphasized that "definitely those now engaged in war industry in Mansfield and Richland county will not be drawn or accepted." They are needed in Mansfield.

The workers would be drawn from industries not engaged in war production.

Even those in a position of not having to work—men and women—form a potential supply.

Those in either of the above two categories, together with persons not now engaged in a job at which they are skilled, are in the labor reservoir which Marion may tap.

Store clerks, office workers, gas station attendants and even business men themselves may be over there on a job.

As a matter of fact, the only Mansfielders between the ages of 18 and 65, who are not subject to be called for war work are those employed in Mansfield's war production plants

How will Mansfield's labor reservoir—if it has one—be tapped?

Well, the labor questionnaires you filled out recently, serve as a key to quickly supply labor.

One of the duplicate questionnaires you filled out is on file over at the offices of C. W. Handley, U. S. employment service manager.

The questionnaire tells the employer exactly what you are equipped to do.

If the card shows you are not engaged in a job at which you are applying your highest skill, and if you are not engaged in war production, you would be looked upon as a prospective employe of the Marion plant.

For example, possibly you can operate a lathe, but you are working as a clerk in a store. You would be subject to a call from Marion.

So far, according to Handley, his office has not received any instructions which would compel a worker to accept a Marion assignment.

If Marion should call for workers under those circumstances, there would be nothing forcing acceptance of a job there, but the first step would be a recruiting program, Handley said.

The lathe operator turned clerk, would receive a card notifying him to appear at the USES office. He would then be interviewed and asked to accept the war job. If he didn't want to, that would end the interview, Handley said.

But, employment service officials believe that if recruiting doesn't produce a sufficient number of workers, there will be a manpower draft.

The recruiting program would also apply to women

As we already know, there hasn't been a registration of women. In Marion, the USES estimates that 1,500 women will be needed from Mansfield and Richland county.

The recruiting system would be applied here in the event of a call for women workers.

First, the employment office would check its list of women who are already registered for employment

If that source failed to produce a sufficient number of workers, there probably would be a call for volunteers, employment officials say.

If there still was an insufficient number of women, employment officials vision a program of house to house interviews with women in Mansfield who might be available to fill a war job.

The recruiting program is already rapidly taking shape in Marion.

U S. employment officials there said a house to house check is to be made there for both men and women within a short time

Even housewives who have not been working will be asked whether they can arrange their affairs so that they can take a job in the ordnance works

He Aided FBI

Corp. Howard Cassingham, above, of Geneseo, Kan, became interested when he saw Washington G. Spiegelberg in a tavern displaying plans of the B-24, one of the United States Army's newest bombers. The tavern was near Mitchell field where Cassingham is stationed He immediately notified the Federal Bureau of Investigation and Spiebelberg is now held on an espionage charge.

THEATERS

Heroic Story.

A story of high courage, devotion and abiding faith is told in the picture, "Mrs. Miniver," screen adaptation of Jan Struther's novel by the same name, opening Saturday at the Ohio. Greer Garson and Walter Pidgeon repeat their successes in "Blossoms in the Dust," in their respective roles of an English woman of the middle class and her sturdy British husband. The terrors of war reach their family on the home front but despite air raids, attack, grief and peril the family staunchly carries on. Teresa Wright, Reginald Owen and Richard Ney are in the cast.

Demands Persist For Control Of Wages

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Sights I'd Like to See.

(Hot! Isn't It?)

THERE are quite a few things I'd like to see along the Broadway beat—silly things to take your mind off the weather and not-so-silly things to add to the general fun. Little things that of course will never happen, and a few things that maybe might.

Kilgallen

For instance, I'd pay a handsome fee to see Frank Libuse let loose during the luncheon hour at the Colony to pull his arrogant waiter act on such startled belles as Mrs. Harrison Williams and Carrie Munn. . . . I'd give my old portable typewriter, priorities considered, to see a pedestrian walk over to four cops and tell them to break it up. . . . I'd love to see Martha Raye as Peter Pan and I'll bet she'd like to do it. . . . And a movie that lived up to its trailer would really be worth the price of admission!

I'd like to see a dancing school advertise in honest fashion: "We may be able to teach you to dance in 25 lessons." . . . I'd like to see Vincent (Angel Street) Price, Eric (Arsenic &) Von Stroheim and Joe (Uncle Harry) Schildkraut open a nice restaurant with a big ghouling system. . . . (I'm kiddin', kids). . . . A nice big white polar bear in John Rockefeller's Prometheus Fountain would be easy on the eyes these scorching afternoons. . . . And I'd adore to see Leo Durocher arming it up Broadway with any National League umpire! . . . I'd love to encounter an emcee who didn't preface each remark with a "Now, folks." . . . And I'd like to see a monument to George Gershwin somewhere near the heart of Broadway.

Carmen Miranda would be something to see as Carmen, and not so fantastic either. . . . I'd like to see a Delancey street sweet potato peddler—and I'd give him business, too. . . . A good solid bandleader feud like the real one that flamed between Rudy Vallee and Will Osborne years ago. . . . I'd adore the zany Hartmans in a Saroyan fantasy. (Bet I get the fantasy in tomorrow's mail). . . . The return of vaudeville to the old Palace would give me a kick; I'd like to find out what they mean when they talk about those good old days. . . . A duet that would really sell me could be arranged—a boogie-woogie pairing of Fiddlers Joe Venuti and Jascha Heifetz. . . . Raise your right hand if you'd like to see a revival of Helen Hayes in "Coquette."

Lenore Lemmon in a high-necked evening gown would be something to see. . . . Durante as Cyrano would be worth the price of admission. . . . I'd like to see tickets handed out in wholesale fashion to drivers who scoot through the dim-out, endangering lives. . . . I'd like to see the night club curfew dropped just one night a week . . . More angels at the Angels Table of the Stage Door Canteen. . . . I'd like to see a new Noel Coward play about Broadway with Laird Cregar playing the Paul Small roll. . . . I'd like to see the hat that fits Victor Mature.

I'd like to see Sixth Avenue carry out its boulevard promise instead of remaining a dingy reminder that the "el" is gone. . . . I'd like to see Butch move the Saturday test siren up to four in the afternoon so those who worked late Friday night could slumber a little longer. . . . I'd love to see Gypsy Rose Lee and Julie Oshins change places just for one performance. . . . I'd like to see Pops Whiteman bring his band back to our town . . . I'd love to see an American flag in front of every building on the street. . . . And more horses and fewer horseplayers. . . . I'd like to see Joan Edwards in a musical comedy with lyrics by Johnny Mercer. . . . And wouldn't you go to the Met if they'd book Willie Howard and his "Rigoletto" quartet?

A no-fight month in the night clubs would be a refreshing novelty. . . . I'd enjoy seeing Dorothy Lamour in a Mother Hubbard and Kate Smith in a sarong. . . . Just one mimic who doesn't do Sharles Boy-ai would be a pleasant change. . . . Are you with me when I say I'd pay $880 to see Beatrice Lillie as Juliet to Bert Lahr's Romeo—on skates? . . . I'd like to see a small Broadway parade to honor the boys in "This Is the Army." . . . I'd like to see a local Leon Henderson put a ceiling on night club prices. . . . I'd like to see a Broadway Hall of Fame honoring the immortals of our Street—Nora Bayes, Jeanne Eagles, Jack Donahue, Helen Morgan, Will Rogers. . . . I'd pay fancy prices to see a two-a-day dance-carnival, starring Fred Astaire, Eleanor Powell, Paul Draper and the DeMarcos.

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD — Glamour factory at war:

One of the bombs dropped on December 7 last shattered a word and gave it an entirely new face and wardrobe.

The word is "propaganda."

Before that day Hollywood looked on the word as Mrs. Gotrocks might on a poor relation. It was something that existed, to be sure, but it mustn't in any way be confused with the words that Hollywood favored — words like "art" and "entertainment" and "colossal."

* * *

ANTI-NAZI pictures were made, but if you suggested that they were "propaganda films" producers and directors were horrified. They were described variously as "romances with a modern background" or "adventure stories" or "modern melodramas."

Hollywood — with a few exceptions—shuddered at the thought of propaganda. The exceptions were those movie-makers (since proved so right) who felt that America needed to know more about the Nazis. If their pictures were "propaganda against that Nazi philosophy, so much the better.

At lunch Fay Bainter, talking about her latest picture, said "We hope it's good propaganda . . . Nine months ago an actress would have been considered indiscreet had she made such a remark for the record. But propaganda today is an important part of Hollywood's war work—especially propaganda that is served with large portions of entertainment.

The Bainter film is "The War Aganist Mrs. Hadley." While the widely-heralded "Mrs. Miniver" was already several months in production, Director Harold Bucquet on another Metro stage launched his less expensive, less anticipated little picture. The studio generally failed to get excited about it until the finished product was given to preview, after which Metro's tired old lion, Leo, began roaring and has kept on to this day.

"Mrs. Hadley," telling the story of a very rich, very protected and selfish woman who chooses to ignore the war, is what the trade calls a "sleeper"—something like a poor relation with a new oil field or options on same.

MISS BAINTER is sure "Mrs. Hadley" will do some good. "Everybody has or knows an Aunt Kate," she says. "She's a woman that won't be bothered by anything, who tries to stay in her own selfish little world no matter what goes on outside of it. She blames the war on the administration and will have no part of it—it's a New Deal invention so she'll just ignore it. Of course she sees the light in the end and gets into the fight. I hope some of the Aunt Kates will see themselves in the movie—and do something about it!"

GUARDS ORGANIZED

CLEVELAND— (AP)— Civilian guards at Cleveland plants producing for the army air forces will be fully organized today along military lines, and will have military powers, it was announced today.

STUDIES PLANTS FOR CIVILIAN OUTPUT PLAN

WPB Considers 'Guinea Pigs' In Program to Concentrate Non-War Manufacture.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Nine industrial "guinea pigs" are being considered for the first test of the war production board's plan to centralize the production of civilian goods in order to obtain maximum output of war supplies, it was revealed today.

Under the new WPB policy, factories in civilian industries will be regrouped and weeded out to get the most efficient production and at the same time release plants, manpower and materials for making military supplies.

The first nine industries to go under the plan will be makers of typewriters, bicycles, agricultural equipment, hot air furnaces, boilers, cutlery, dairy machines, enamel kitchen utensils, and hollow and flatware. Eventually, all other civilian industries will be affected.

WPB spokesmen emphasized that the plan is now loosely drawn but said it will work about like this:

1. If ten plants engaged in making the same article are producing only at one-tenth normal capacity, nine of them will be closed down or converted and the other allowed to run full blast.

2. Small plants, as a rule, will be allowed to continue operation while larger ones will be turned over to war production.

3. Civilian production will be suspended in areas where labor is needed in war plants, but allowed to continue in areas where labor supplies are ample.

4. Production will be suspended or curtailed where power supply or warehouse accommodations are inadequate.

The WPB admitted many problems are yet to be solved—compensation for closed-down firms, maintenance of trademarks and rearrangement of distributive channels.

But it added that compensation for suspended factories should come from those allowed to continue production, and said "concentration plans should not foster post-war domination of an industry by one or a few companies."

'GIRL TROUBLE' BRINGS SLAYING

Youth Stalks Roommate, Kills Him Because of Remarks About Sweetheart.

(By United Press)

FRANKLIN — A 16-year-old railroad laborer, who admitted stalking his roommate through a 40-man section gang before shooting him to death because of "girl trouble," was held by police today at nearby Carlisle.

Cecil Thompson told police that he shot his friend, Wesley B. Elkins, 20, because he "made some uncomplimentary remarks about my girl friend" and because he "kidded me about taking her away from me." They had been roommates since April.

Elkins was wounded critically as he was working with a B. & O. section gang near Carlisle. He died a few moments later.

Thompson borrowed a .22 caliber rifle from a friend and one bullet from another friend yesterday on the pretext of "going groundhog hunting." He drove to a roadway adjacent to the track on which Elkins and the rest of the gang was working then searched through the entire crew for Elkins, police said.

Enos Gilbert of Chautauqua was working beside Elkins when Thompson approached.

"Cecil said he was going to shoot and Elkins grabbed me to shield himself," Gilbert said. "Thompson snapped the gun twice and it didn't go off. You can imagine how I felt."

He said Thompson then ordered him to break away from Elkins "or get shot."

"I threw Elkins off my back into a ditch alongside the tracks," Gilbert said. "I told him to stay there in the ditch and he might not be hit.

"But he got up and started to run. That's when he got shot."

CHANGES RULES

ODT Calls For Reduction In Truck Mileage.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—The Office of Defense Transportation has amended its regulations covering private and contract truck carriers to provide after Aug. 1 for a 25 per cent reduction in mileage compared with the corresponding month of last year.

In addition, the two previous orders covering these carriers were consolidated into a new general order covering trucks engaged in over the road service. The new order provides that these trucks be loaded to capacity on a considerable portion of the trip out or back and that the operator use "due diligence" to obtain a full load over the entire round trip.

U. S. SAILORS IN HIGH SPIRITS AS THEY ROAM LONDON STREETS

(By International News Service)

LONDON—A large contingent of American sailors, the first seen in the British capital during the present war, arrived in London today on leave.

The seamen were from a task force of units of the United States fleet operating in European waters.

Their visit in London constituted for many the first shore leave they had had in more than a year. A number of dances and other entertainments were immediately arranged for amusement of the sailors.

Before dispatching the men U. S. naval officers read them a list of instructions. Included in the orders were these:

"Don't boast.

"Don't argue.

"Don't discuss ships or trips."

Among those arriving in London were Emery Jacab, of Cleveland, O.; Thomas Jordan, Bridgeport, Conn.; William Hindmarch, Rochester, N. Y.; Kenneth Hendrikson, Brooklyn, N. Y., and J. P. McClery, of Watertown, Conn.

The entire contingent was in high spirit. The sailors posed for photographers upon their arrival and then spread out over London like a small tidal wave.

Laff-a-Day

"Nothing came up. Do you suppose I planted the seeds upside down?"

Up and Down the Street

When Dr. Erling A. Smedal, Mansfield eye, nose and throat specialist, reports for duty at Langley Field, Hampton, Va., next week, he will be the last of four brothers, all physicians, to enter the armed forces. Dr. Smedal, who recently received his commission as captain, will be the third brother in the U. S. Army. The youngest brother, Lieut. H. A. Smedal, is with the navy at Pensacola, Fla. Major M. I. Smedal is located in northern Ireland and Capt. A. T. Smedal is stationed with the field artillery at Camp Roberts, Calif.

When County Treasurer Charles Payne arrived at the courthouse this morning from Shelby and saw Jimmy Lemley wasn't at his confection stand, the treasurer suddenly remembered that Jimmy was in Shelby and had planned to ride back to Mansfield this morning with Payne. The treasurer went to a telephone, called Jimmy in Shelby, offered his apologies, and arranged for him and Mrs. Lemley to come back on the bus. When they arrived later in the morning, Payne paid their fares.

Boy Scouts of Troop 5 meeting at Hedges school ran into a pretty nice thing while collecting old phonograph records this week. One household not only gave a stack of old discs but also contributed an old phonograph. Scouts loaded the machine on their trek cart and during the rest of the day they made their collections to the accompaniment of music played on the old phonograph.

Keep the home letters cheerful to the men in service and if Aunt Minnie is really ill, be factual, but don't dwell upon it. That's the advice contained in a bulletin received by the Richland county Red Cross from national headquarters. Any other type of letter is apt to help the Axis by turning a "determined soldier into a bewildered worried boy." Fortunately, the bulletin states, the writers of family problems are in the minority but a friendly note of warning is sounded to keep the letters free from personal problems.

DENIES IT

Smith Says 'It's Not Mine' as Indictment Names Paper.

DETROIT —(AP)— Gerald L. K. Smith, chairman of the Committee of 1,000,000 and editor and publisher of "The Cross and the Flag," a monthly publication, said today that if such a publication was named in a Washington indictment charging seditious conspiracy, "it is not mine."

An indictment against 28 persons charged with conspiracy to obstruct the war effort, returned at Washington Thursday, named "The Cross and The Flag" as one of the publications it said had been "used" in the conspiracy.

Smith, who is a candidate for the Republican nomination for United States Senator from Michigan, said: "My publication has not carried any seditious articles."

REPORT FDR HAS POWER TO HALT UPSURGE

Congressmen Expect President To Issue Executive Order on Inflation Program.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Demands continued in congress today for immediate action to block inflation by wage control, as Attorney General Biddle was reported to have prepared an opinion stating that President Roosevelt has authority in his vast war powers to take direct action to check upsurging prices and wages.

There were reports in congress that the chief executive may thus issue an executive order and not ask the house and senate for further anti-inflation legislation.

At the same time, many members of congress left the city, including Rep. Steagall (D) Ala., chairman of the house banking committee, which would have jurisdiction in the lower chamber over any legislation that the president might propose.

Senate Majority Leader Barkley, however, said he expected a "communication" from the president soon and added that as far as he could see, any formal recess or adjournment of congress "is out the window."

"I am one of those who believe we ought to have legislation," Barkley said. "I do not believe the president has the power to override any formula which we have written into any law with regard to prices or the general war powers which we have enacted.

Barkley's comment followed a declaration by Sen. George (D) Ga., that "if our people—and that means William Green, Philip Murray and U. S. Steel—cannot be induced to accept lower wages and lower profits, we will not win this war."

Sen. O'Mahoney (D) Wyo., insisted that congress and the administration should take hold of the wage problem and "meet the issue head-on now," while Sen. Vandenberg (R) Mich., said that "there can be no sound anti-inflation program until wage increases are geared to anti-inflation controls."

Vigorous opposition to any plan to "freeze" wages, either by legislation or presidential executive decree was expressed to Mr. Roosevelt by AFL Chief William Green and Philip Murray, head of the CIO, who said they were given the impression that the president "reacted favorably" to their demands.

Green and Murray opposed any "interference" with existing machinery by "any other government agency" apparently referring to Leon Henderson's price administration.

Bill Permitting Soldiers to Vote Goes to Senate

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)—Legislation to allow members of the armed forces in the continental United States to vote in the 1942 elections went to the senate today.

The bill was passed, 134 to 19.

The bill assures soldiers, marines and sailors in the United States and Alaska an opportunity to vote in the congressional elections if they are qualified as voters in their states.

Rep. John M. Vorys, (R., O.) charged that southern representatives who opposed the bill on questions of granting Negro voters rights in southern states, charged that tactics were a "filibuster."

"They are willing to delay giving our fighting men an opportunity to vote in order to hang on to their systems of keeping Negroes from voting. They are willing to delay public business to enforce their will," Vorys charged.

VOWS EXCHANGED AT ST. PETER'S CHURCH

Miriam Durig Marries Robert Gundlach at 9:30 This Morning; Wedding Breakfast at Women's Club.

IN A LOVELY WEDDING at St. Peter's Catholic church at 9:30 this morning, Miss Miriam Durig, daughter of Mrs. Ruth E. Durig, 91 West Dickson avenue, exchanged vows with Robert C. Gundlach, son of Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Gundlach, Sandusky. Msgr. R. C. Goebel officiated for the service.

Organist was Raymond Baum. The church was decorated with palms, ferns and baskets of gladioli on either side of the altar. The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Clyde A. Bonham.

The bride's ensemble was a powder blue silk crepe street length dress with matching short sleeved jacket, which was trimmed with a floral design of French knots. Her black hat of horse hair braid had a small veil. Black shoes and gloves matching her dress completed the outfit. Her corsage was made of an orchid and swansonia.

Miss Patricia Stuhldreher, attendant, wore a rose crepe dress with short sleeved jacket. She also had black shoes and hat with gloves matching her dress. She carried a colonial bouquet. Mrs. Durig chose a black silk jersey dress with aqua and black accessories. Her corsage was of gardenias. The bridegroom's mother was attired in a luggage tan and beige silk crepe dress with beige accessories. She wore a gardenia shoulder corsage.

Ushers were Donald Gundlach and Richard Gundlach, brothers of the bridegroom. Another brother was Lamont Gundlach, the best man. At 11 o'clock a wedding breakfast for immediate families and 25 guests was held at the Women's Club. Tables were decorated with candles, floral centerpiece and wedding cake.

After the guests had arrived, the hostesses presented the bride-elect with a corsage of roses to be worn on a scavenger hunt. The 13 guests, in two cars led by the honoree who had the directions, traveled around the city to various restaurants and stores, where Miss Bowersock was required to do stunts in order to receive her gifts.

At the close of the hunt, the group returned to the home where a two course luncheon was served at a long table. The attractive appointments were in pink and white. Centerpiece was a tiered wedding cake with miniature bride and bridegroom. Favors were individual corsages in pastel colors. There were name cards at each place and tall pink tapers in crystal holders at each end of the table.

Later in the evening the girls enjoyed dancing. At that time, the hostesses presented the honoree with a lovely personal gift. Miss Bowersock is employed in the office of Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company. At the lunch hour Thursday, the office force presented her with a shower of lovely gifts. Health for Victory Club Women Hear About Milk

Milk, the most nearly perfect food, was the subject presented by Miss Charlotte Ferris, assistant director of home economics at Westinghouse, to the members of the Health for Victory club who gathered yesterday for their sixth meeting in the Westinghouse auditorium.

The women, wives and mothers of Westinghouse employes, were told that milk is the one food that furnishes them all of the things needed by our bodies, heat and energy, protection, and growth and repair. They were asked not to think of milk as a liquid, a beverage, but as a food, the most important food that we know of.

Mrs. Kiene, home economics manager, was on hand to start the meeting. Questionnaires had been given to the women as they came into the lobby. These questions, designed to supply information on individual families, how they had used and benefitted by the Health for Victory club, and just what the results to date had been, were read aloud by Mrs. Kiene after which each member wrote down the answer as it pertained to her individual family. The questionnaires were then collected and at the end of the meeting Mrs. Kiene came back onto the stage, after the questionnaires had been analyzed, and gave a few of the interesting points brought out by the study of the questionnaires.

After a study of the answers filled in by the Health for Victory club members it was found two-thirds of the women present used the recipes in the Meal Planning Guide frequently, a few used them all of the time, and one-third of the women just glanced at the Meal Planning Guide occasionally and then threw it back into the drawer. Mrs. Kiene pointed out that, "The very valuable part is that you have talked to us on the bottom of the questionnaire, and I believe the one-third of you who use the Meal-Planning Guide only occasionally will soon be using it much oftener because we are finding out from these questionnaires how to make it more usable."

Other interesting facts brought out by the questionnaires were that two-thirds of the women feel better since they have been eating more healthful meals; 70 per cent of the children are healthier, and two-thirds of the men are feeling better this summer than last summer.

Mrs. Kiene then introduced her assistant, Miss Ferris, who told the very interesting and unusual story of "Milk, the Most Nearly Perfect Food."

To emphasize her point that milk was a food and should not be considered as merely a liquid, Miss Ferris placed on the table various vegetables, tomatoes, egg plant, cauliflower, squash, cucumber—and pointed out that all of these vegetables have a higher water content than milk.

Miss Ferris stated that milk contains, in some part, all three of the foods needed by the body. For heat and energy foods milk contains fat and sugar; for body protecting foods milk contains the vitamins A, B, C, and Niacin; for the body growth and repair foods, which were stressed particularly, milk contains calcium, which is the food that makes the body strong and the teeth sound.

To demonstrate how much calcium a glass of milk contains in comparison with other foods, Miss Ferris measured out the amounts of food containing as much calcium as just one glass of milk. She placed on the table nine large potatoes, three and one-half cups carrots, 36 apples, 54 prunes, 42 slices of bread, five and one-third pound of boneless meat. The one glass of milk looked small in comparison with the other food placed on the table, but it contained more calcium than any of the other foods there.

Miss Ferris pointed out that skim milk contained as much food value as whole sweet milk and was, of course, not as fattening. She also said the other milk products, buttermilk, cheese, butter and cream, contained the same food value and could be eaten to help supply the amount of milk we need every day—one full quart for children and for adults, one pint every day.

While Mrs. Kiene was on the stage she told the women how great had been the expansion of the Health for Victory club since its beginning here at Mansfield on Feb. 26. She stated that the Health for Victory club now has reached out to over 60 war plants in 16 different states in the United States. She commended the women for having started the club that was growing "like wildfire."

All attending yesterday's meeting were given the August Meal Planning Guide with suggested menus for each meal of the month, and all were invited to come back for the next meeting to be held Aug. 27 in the Westinghouse auditorium.

MEMBERS OF KIWANIS HAVE "LADIES' NIGHT"

Members and Guests Spend Enjoyable Evening at Westbrook Country Club; Mr. White Is Chairman.

LAST EVENING Kiwanis members entertained their wives at Westbrook Country club for "Ladies' Night." Approximately 124 persons attended. The entertainment was designed for everyone's getting acquainted and began by filling out name cards. At 7:30 the group filed into the dining room to the tune of marching music played by William F. Black.

After dinner the program was in charge of Arthur Busch, who impersonated a circus barker. The name cards were used for the first game, one similar to bingo, with Mrs. Frank Poling winning the prize. Dressed as a soothsayer, who answered perplexing questions, was Probate Judge Stuart Cramer, alias Prince Knee-High-Knee.

Another part of the entertainment consisted of the members and guests reading foolish rhymes. A "Battle of the Sexes" singing contest was held with Charles Conklin leading the men and Clyde Smaltz conducting the women. William Black accompanied at the piano.

Highlighting the program was the "international conference." Joy Herbert, Carlton Fernyak, Otis Sowash, W. C. Mansfield and W. B. Ford were called out of the room. When they returned they were attired in rubber masks of Mussolini, Hitler, Mahatma Gandhi, President Roosevelt and Stalin respectively.

Hilarity was added by these celebrities being given five "babies" to hold, who in reality were Charles W. Fuchs, Rufus Tracy, Henry Talmage, Arch Jones and Milo Hieber. The "babies" were handed bottles of milk to drink and Mr. Hieber was declared the winner.

Serving as program chairman was Nicholas White assisted by Mrs. White, Mr. and Mrs. John Conard, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. Scott Coffin, Mrs. Busch and Atty. Black.

"We want women on the manpower board."

That request has been made to Paul McNutt, chairman of the War Manpower Commission, by the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs and the National Y.W.C.A., as the surest means, in their opinion, of getting an even break for women war workers in industry.

Up to now they claim that women have not had it — that many are working with inadequate training, under poor conditions, for less pay than men for the same job.

The request to put women on the manpower board is part of the women's drive to get women on the country's policy shaping committees, both local and federal. (Frances Perkins, who is already on the manpower board is there as Secretary of Labor, the women's groups say, not as a representative of women.)

"Women on policy shaping committees could have a voice in the training of women and the conditions under which they work," says Dr. Minnie L. Maffett, President of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs. "We want women on the boards of education. We want them to make an effort to have vocational training courses (part of many public school systems) opened to women.

"We would like to see our women working closely with the United States Employment Service. We want them also to recruit women to take the Employment Service courses which that organization sponsors."

Miss Olive Van Horn, professional head of the Y.W.C.A. Committee for Women at Work, has other suggestions for improving conditions:

"The Y.W.C.A. has 419 local associations which deal with problems of working women. We want these women to expand their influences and concern, to make contact with the U. S. Employment Service, with labor organizations, and with employers to work out plans which will produce the most favorable working conditions for women.

"Besides that we need increased factory inspection—both federal and state. This is provided for through public funds. Public funds are allotted by public servants. So women should study the list of candidates for the next election, and vote for men whose records are good in this respect.

"It is also important to see that protective legislation concerning hour standards and conditions of work for women are not waived in this present crisis.

"Women's work is a necessity in this war. The circumstances and conditions under which they make their full contribution to the war effort cannot be worked out by men alone. It takes women with knowledge and insight of special problems and adjustments to avoid undue social cost. We will never get the best results from women's industrial work until women who understand the situation are in positions to help determine policy and until they pitch in and take a hand, from Washington to Main Street."

Mother Love Will Defeat New Wishes

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"I'm 32 years old, have been married for nine years and have three children, ranging in ages from 18 months to 7½ years. We have a nice home and a good car. My husband's salary is safe, if anything these days can be so considered.

"Our marital accord had drifted into a taken-for-granted relationship. My husband loved me, he adored the children, he never looked at another woman, he was a good provider—then suddenly came the earthquake! I met a man and everything else went—home, husband and children. My one desire was to be with him and every other consideration was blotted out. I told my husband, and asked for a divorce.

"The children were his first consideration. I love them and wish for them every happiness, but my feeling for them is outweighed by what I feel for this man. Nothing weighs against the feeling which has come to me with this new love.

"My husband has been wonderful but he thinks I'm not quite sane. He suggests a mental specialist, a psychiatrist, and urges me to go away, without the man I love, and think things over—my children, my home, even my promises in marriage. But these things seem dull, flat, not to be borne with what life offers me now. I'm not writing for a sermon on duty but, with your experience in problems what do you think? Am I a monster? Am I wholly sane? Have such things happened to other women? Does such a love last?

"SECOND BLOOMING"

My dear lady, I'm going to reply to your letter by telling you a story which doubtless you may think absurd and common-place beside this grand passion which has overwhelmed you. It has to do with that fundamental instinct called Mother Love.

One day last week a terrific fire blazed almost next door to my home. A young fool had thrown a cigarettte, still burning, into a trash basket. Presently the entire house was aflame. A church—the one attended by President Roosevelt—just across an alleyway from the burning house, had windows broken and great holes burned in the awning over the President's entrance. Streets were filled with engines, streams of water, frantic people who wondered if their homes would go next.

A black alley cat had hidden her kittens in the basement of the burning house, under some discarded boards and newspapers in a basement areaway.

In all the excitement of the fire she braved the blaze, entered, brought out three singed kittens. She returned for the fourth kitten, the fire caught them both. The other kittens were drowned by the firemen's hose. To me that burned alley cat stood for the great civilizer of the race—responsible motherhood.

Have Charm Plus Looks To Succeed

By MME. QUI VIVE

It isn't as if we had to get along with a few good points with which we were born. No! We can sharpen our wits and go out and cultivate some. Just like that. A woman of intelligence and good taste shows improvement every year of her life, even after silver threads and wrinkles have dated her. One cannot remodel one's nose, change the color of the eyes or reduce stubby fingers into slender ones, but one can cultivate attributes of loveliness that overshadow physical perfection, attributes that bring to one the affection and admiration of others. That's what counts, isn't it? After all, we race to the beauty goal because we seek contentment and happiness. The better we look, the better we feel.

Glamor girls are all around us. Prettiness is a drug on the market. Millions of cute dollies. Attention has been focused on heavenly complexions, shining coiffures, slender shapes. What if one has one's beauty house in order? That's not enough. The house must be lighted, made radiant with fine qualities of character and spirit.

A girl may have the ideal profile, cheeks like the rose, lips like rubies—fake ones, maybe—but if her head is full of nothing what do her pulchritude riches get her?

The ingredients in the formula of charm are amiability, delightful manners, naturalness, a sense of humor, poise, tolerance, thoughtfulness of others and tact. A big order, we acknowledge. But don't bother your pretty head. You don't have to have all of them. Just be a good scout, a good egg.

And there's something very definite that must be remembered: it is that one cannot indulge in mean, petty traits because they will efface the winning qualities. There must be no sharp speech or back biting, no selfish motives, no envy, jealousy, malice. Above everything else there must be no whining. That's not only being spineless but it is making oneself a bore. Run around handing out grievances and everyone will flee as from a pest.

Charm should increase with age because the years should make a woman wiser, more tolerant, more aware of the folly of argument and combat.

Many a woman of fifty is more attractive than the average young thing, though the lassie be blessed with all the loveliness and freshness of youth. The older woman has learned that good nature brings respect and love, that ill nature drives them away. Her desire is to get along comfortably and agreeably with her fellow creatures whether it be the husband who sits with her beside the hearth or the humblest toiler who serves her.

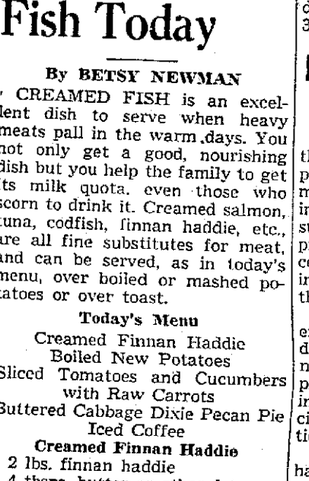
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

TAKE THAT SETTER

When there is the slightest doubt about the outcome, a defender should take his apparently sure setting trick at once, and not fenagle around to try to beat the contract several tricks. Ambitious players, or at least a certain number of them, seem never to learn this important, basic and very simple lesson. With so many points at stake, in the case of a doubled game contract, it is losing bridge to play for the extra points from a set of one or two more tricks, if that reasonably endangers the prospects of beating the contract at all.



(Dealer: East. Both sides vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
Pass	Pass	1 ♠	Dbl
Pass	2 ♥	4 ♠	Pass
Pass	Dbl

Considering his partner's suit the safest lead, North laid down the heart A to start the play. What he saw made him shift, selecting the diamond A to find out if South would give him a high card to urge continuation. South did, with the diamond 8, whereupon North led the diamond 4 to the K.

Thinking over the situation, South decided that North's heart A probably had been a singleton, and that a heart ruff was in prospect. So he led the heart 4, on which West discarded his only club. Now there was no chance to beat the contract. A club ruff put West in to lead his last diamond for a ruff by the spade Q, and a second club ruff put him in shape to run the rest of the trumps and make his contract.

As it happens, South had two ways to set the contract. A spade return to the fourth trick would have prevented West from ever getting rid of both his last diamond and his single club. But the better way to have beaten the contract surely would have been by laying down the club A, to do it at once. South said after the hand that he had hoped to set it two or more tricks with the defense he tried.

Tomorrow's Problem.

(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

How many tricks can West take at No Trumps on this deal if South plays his spade 10 on the dummy's 9 after North leads the 3? How should he play for them?

Try a Dish Of Creamed Fish Today

By BETSY NEWMAN

CREAMED FISH is an excellent dish to serve when heavy meats pall in the warm days. You not only get a good, nourishing dish but you help the family to get its milk quota, even those who scorn to drink it. Creamed salmon, tuna, codfish, finnan haddie, etc., are all fine substitutes for meat, and can be served, as in today's menu, over boiled or mashed potatoes or over toast.

Today's Menu

Creamed Finnan Haddie
Boiled New Potatoes
Sliced Tomatoes and Cucumbers with Raw Carrots
Buttered Cabbage Dixie Pecan Pie
Iced Coffee

Creamed Finnan Haddie

2 lbs. finnan haddie
4 tbsps. butter or other fat
4 tbsps. flour
2 cps. milk
Salt to taste
Pepper

Cut fish into 2 or 3 large pieces to fit into saucepan, cover with cold water, bring slowly to boiling point, simmer gently for 10 or 15 minutes. If haddie is very dry and salty, add fresh water and cook a second time, but this probably will not be necessary; drain. Pick flakes of fish from bones and add to the sauce made from fat, flour, milk and seasoning, and serve at once. Serves 6 to 8.

Dixie Pecan Pie

Make pie crust, line pie tin with same, crimp edges and put in refrigerator until filling is ready.

Pecan Filling

3 eggs
1 tbsp. sugar
2 tbsps. flour
2 cps. dark corn syrup
1 tsp. vanilla extract
¼ tsp. salt
1 c. whole pecan meats

Beat eggs until light. Mix sugar and flour, add to eggs, and beat well. Add syrup, vanilla, salt and pecans, pour mixture into prepared pie crust and make in 375 degree F. oven for 50 minutes.

HOROSCOPE

FOR SATURDAY, JULY 25

Judging by the lunar transits this should be a lively and enterprising day, with many affairs moving under high pressure and initiative. New projects should be successfully launched, but with precaution and an alertness to deception, treachery or subtle doings. This may particularly affect the private life.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year of some anxiety despite some important and swift-moving event. This may be a new project. However, the private life in its domestic, affectional or social relations may be menaced particularly by a woman's jealousy.

A child born on this day should have much constructive ability, with enterprise, initiative, force and courage, but may be subject to jealousy and trickery.

Child Should Know How to Speak Clearly

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.

You and I want to make ourselves more likeable. We want to do so for our own personal satisfaction and for the pleasure of other persons. Also we are eager to become good models in speech and behavior for our children.

Many times in these columns I have called attention to the voice as an item in personality. Parents can learn to speak quietly and pleasantly. Fathers can prove themselves more manly as they cultivate deep vibrant tones.

Adults can learn to speak distinctly, by diligently using both lips and tongue. How frequently people mouth their words so that those to whom they speak, hearing only part of what they say, have to guess the remainder. The little child, just learning to talk, must find some people very hard to understand. No wonder he so often acquires the wrong use of words.

Parents and relatives should learn to complete sentences and say exactly what they mean. They may enjoy temporary satisfaction from using slang; but when they do so it is a form of mental laziness. They are not taking the trouble to find the right word and are making no effort to increase their vocabulary. But every parent wishes the children to learn correct speech. So from the baby's birth on both father and mother should cultivate their diction. The child's speech and voice modulation is learned from his parents.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"Ruth Hayes is a fiend," I said, echoing Katharine's words, "and from what Jack told me we believe her to be a spy also, working with the gang now trying to find him.

"She was in the hotel only a few minutes ago, trying to learn Jack's whereabouts from me, and she taunted me with your search of the hospitals.

"But," I went on quickly, forestalling any interruption, "she got no satisfaction of course, and my father is having her trailed.

"And now, dear girl, I have already given you the high lights, but it is due you to know everything about this, and I want you to believe that only my father's express command, invoking my military obedience, and the solemn promise Jack exacted from me, have kept me from telling you before. But today the appearance of Ruth Hayes was the last straw, and I begged my father to let me tell you about it."

I began with Stephen Redfield's inquiry concerning Jack's whereabouts, then went on to the cryptogram sheets Mary abstracted from Redfield's papers scattered in the restaurant by a gust of wind, in which I had recognized Jack's handwriting.

Then I told of my journey to Professor Diswell's home in the Connecticut mountains, of my finding Jack there and my conversation with him, and of bringing back to the hideaway the captured gangsters.

Omits One Detail.

Only one thing did I omit. I made no mention of the ivory watch charm I had discovered—my first real clue to Jack's identity. If Jack should ever show her that watch charm again, I did not wish her to know I had seen it.

Finally I told her every detail of the visit of Ruth Hayes, then sat silent, waiting for her questions.

The color that came back to her face as I talked was the only sign that I was cheering her in the least. But when I finished my description of Ruth Hayes being ushered out by my father, she took her hand from her eyes, revealing that they were bright and keenly shrewd again.

Wants To Help Jack.

"I haven't a question to ask you," she said, stressing the pronoun. "I can see that you have told me everything you know, and you cannot know what infinite relief it gives me to know of Jack's safety, and what explains the mystery of his behavior.

"It—hasn't been exactly pleasant," she went on, "to believe my husband a cruel coward and a weakling."

"I know, dear girl," I ventured, and again she smiled.

"You never fail to understand," she said. "But now I want to see your father. Of course my search of the hospitals is ended, but there may be work he can give me to do. I—I don't want to go back to the farm, Madge, much as I love your children, if there is anything I can do here to help Jack."

CHAPTER X

At 9 o'clock the following morning, Gordon was chatting with the desk sergeant at police headquarters who referred him to the police clerk, who knew "a powerful lot 'bout Denver."

The genial clerk lifted out a photograph with printed forms and a newspaper clipping attached to it. "This the feller you want?" he inquired.

"Yes, that's the slicker," said Gordon. "Mind if I read your facts on his career?"

"Not at all. Sit over there. Call me when you're finished."

The clerk ambled into the adjoining office. Gordon studied the clipping and the attached printed forms. It was a strange set of criminal facts that made a story which left a long, tortuous trail like that of a fox.

The blunt, non-committal entries on the forms, when pieced together, recounted that Alvin Oliver had been a technician at an X-ray laboratory. He had stolen company funds and served six years for that theft.

The newspaper account explained that Oliver through sly schemes, eventually had become a trusty in the warden's office, and one day had seen a thousand dollar check lying on the warden's desk. The strip of signed legal tender had been a donation to the prisoners' Christmas fund and had been sent in the name of Clifford Morley's first wife, Laurie, and signed by Morley. Oliver, the story said, must have made a copy of Morley's signature.

Having served his term Oliver was released. In need of ready cash, he had forged a check, with Clifford Morley's name on it—the amount was small—to see whether he could pass it and discover whether his hand had lost its cunning and become rheumatic in the damp air of the prison cell. The bank detected the forgery. The police snared Alvin Oliver. The bank-teller identified him the same day as the man who cashed the check. But Morley had been asked to pass final verdict on the signature before the courts did their work on the case.

After much questioning into Oliver's history, past and present, his age and employment references, Morley had a long talk with Oliver after which Morley had said the signature on the check was not a forgery, but his own. This killed the bank's case against Oliver.

The story added that everybody concerned had apologized to Oliver, and Morley had promised to make up for the humiliation and embarrassment to the former embezzler.

To do that, Morley had invited Oliver to be his house guest at his palatial valley home on Callada road five miles from the town center of Denver. The story ended.

"Mr. Garn," he called. The elderly clerk entered from the adjoining office.

"Do you remember any more of the details of this case?"

"Reckon so. Sure. That fellow Clifford Morley lived in Ben Iverson's mansion. Big spooky house. His wife Laurie married Morley after Ben died and left the Double Jackpot gold mine to her. She was quite a rip-snorter. They say she was the washwoman at the mine when Ben Iverson married her. After that, she went in for culture a lot; opera and painted pictures and big feathered hats. Guess this Morley must have had some fancy dude ways she liked. It was quite a weddin'—and this Oliver lived with Laurie and Morley until she died."

"How long was that?"

"'Bout three years."

"How did she die?"

"Can't say. Doctors said she got a bad attack of influenza and went galley west. Laurie seemed as tough as a pinto horse; big fat woman; yet up in that valley house she just got sicker and sicker and thinner and thinner until she cashed in."

* * *

Pearman's is a super-speedy realty firm in Denver. The doors are plate glass and imitation bronze; there is indirect lighting, with air humidified and scented.

When Gordon told the unbending receptionist he'd like to make an inquiry about a piece of property—the Morley house—the receptionist bowed him eagerly into the presence of a bald bird who beamed at the mention of the word "Morley."

"Splendid piece of property, on Callada road. Nothing better. Unusually low price too. Morley's been anxious to sell it. Excellent view," gabbled the land-holder. "You could have it for a bagatelle. Property is going up by leaps and bounds, that piece of land should double in price in a year! Yes, sir."

"Yes, yes, so I've heard," said Gordon. "It's nothing definite that I have in mind. I'd better drive out there and look it over."

"I'll drive you out there myself. When would you like to see it, tomorrow?"

"No, today. But you needn't bother. If you'll give me the key, I'll go through it this morning. You see, it's not for myself, but for someone back East."

"Oh, I see, just a prospect. Well, I'll give you the key."

Pearman pressed a buzzer and in a flash was confronted by an expectant secretary.

"Give Mr. Lewis the keys to the Morley house."

The secretary scrambled like a chicken after corn; returned clucking joyfully and pressed a ring of keys into Gordon's hands.

"Look it over carefully and let me know how it strikes you," said Pearman, "there's a gardener there sometimes. He's a little eccentric. Don't go looking for him."

Gordon drove Creswell's car around the square where the county building stood. There he turned north, drove three miles, turned left on the double lane concrete highway—Callada road—then two miles north.

White-capped mountains hunched their shoulders under the weight of sky. Far to the west the golden sun glinted from the peaks.

He saw the Morley house beyond a barrier of pine, fir, and bayberry that fronted the road. He stopped his car at the driveway entrance, walked between two scowling lions.

It was a three-towered, rectangular mansion. Gordon saw the whole story of Denver latent in it. An old structure, with oak frame, grayish stucco and stained limestone, granite and a huge leaning chimney in the midst of three towers. It suggested Denver millionaires, belles of the gay nineties, booted prospectors, champagne and strawberry blonds.

It squatted far back, hidden from the concrete road by short pine trees and vines. The exterior was decorated with odd figures, half Flemish and English, scrambled with occasional Victorian fretwork and gingerbread designs. Some designs were stamped in the gray stucco and cement, showing all its scabrous dull lime, pebbles, and crushed glass.

* * *

Shining in the late sunlight were several windows with oval-shaped panes. The second story extended far over the base of the house, throwing a shadowy and apprehensive gloom over a long, narrow terrace.

"A house where it would be mighty strange to hear a laugh," thought Gordon. "What a casket to live in!"

Gordon turned to the doorway, tinged with green moss that had long since gathered over the woodwork. The green verdigris of the lock stuck to his fingers.

The hinges groaned as Gordon pushed back the heavy door. The house exhaled its musty breath, like a disturbed sleeper.

The front rooms were haunted with furniture covered with grayish white sheets. The stairs creaked sadly as he climbed them, walking near the mahogany spindle bannister, he did not grip its dusty surface.

He opened the first door at the top of the landing. It might have been Clifford Morley's suite. There was a large room, with a smaller one adjoining it. Both were provided with furniture, elegant and costly.

The floor was covered with a mouldering carpet once skillfully and richly wrought. In one corner stood a pink marble sculptured head on a pedestal. Some pictures — that looked old-fashioned, showed a mellow tinge. Near the fireplace an intricately carved cabinet, a piece of antique furniture which seemed to be English or French. Gordon looked through it; it was empty.

Two objects appeared out of place in the handsomely furnished room. One was a large map or surveyor's plan of a tract of land, which looked as though it had been drawn a good many years ago, and was dingy and bore finger marks. The other was a portrait of a stern old man, in Victorian garb; collar and mustache, painted roughly, but with a bold effect, the face had a remarkable strong expression of character.

The map was of old Denver, and marked the Iverson Jackpot claim. The portrait, Gordon guessed, was of the original owner, Iverson.

He turned and walked down a long narrow hall, passing a reading room or a sitting room, and opened another panelled door.

He entered a suite of rooms larger than Morley's. Laurie's picture hung on the wall near a hazy mirror. Otherwise, the room was empty. The floor was still covered with flowered Victorian carpets. Gordon's heavy footsteps roused fine dust that irritated his nose and throat.

"That's damn odd," thought Gordon, "Here's her suite, at the other end of the house. Why? The whole house is furnished; only her suite is empty."

He crossed the room to the picture, lifted it away from the wall — lighter color showed beneath. It had hung there a long time. He recrossed the carpeted floor, and opened closets; he saw nothing but walls, flaked with peeling paint, and musty.

He was deep in thought when suddenly he fell back with the shock of a blow on his head and dropped to the floor. His astonished eyes glanced up. He looked through what had become a haze, and saw a lean, vicious face peering down into his.

A high-heeled boot of the stranger forced Gordon back and kept him flat on the floor. The attacker pointed a gun at him.

"Don't be crazy, man, I'm not a thief!" groaned Gordon, gesturing feebly with his hand. "I'm from the real estate office. I came to look over the house."

OPA STUDYING POSTWAR SALES

Official Offers Plan of Pay-Now, Get-It-Later To Aid Treasury.

CLEVELAND —(INS)— A new discount plan which may be entitled "installment selling in reverse" is being considered today by the office of price administration as an indirect curb of inflation and abundance of consumer purchasing powers.

The magazine Daily Trade announced its current issue appearing tomorrow will carry an article by Rolf Nugent, of the consumer requirements division of the OPA, who will discuss the plan to urge consumers to purchase items now for post-war delivery.

The proposed plan, according to Nugent, will encourage consumers to pay now for automobiles, electric refrigerators, radios and other consumer goods for delivery when the war is over.

The money would go to the U. S. treasury and in compensation the individual would get a 10 per cent discount. He would need pay only $900 for a $1000 purchase certificate good for consumer goods after the war.

Dealers handling these purchases will get 6 per cent commission of which 4 per cent would come out of the down payments and the remaining 2 per cent after payments had been completed.

CLOSE SHRINE FOR DURATION

SAVANNAH, Ga. —(U P)— The Fort Pulaski national monument, historic shrine visited by 60,000 persons each year, has been closed to the public for the duration.

The strategic location of Fort Pulaski, fortification used during the Civil war and engineered by Robert E. Lee shortly after his graduation from West Point, caused officials to close it.

Built during the 1820's, Fort Pulaski had been under improvement for seven years. It was dedicated as a national park in the fall of 1938. Naval officials said the fort and grounds would be maintained and turned back to the department of interior following the war.

WILL PRESERVE OLD LETTER

CARMI, Ill —(U.P.)—School officials will put a small copper box found in a recently razed school in the cornerstone of a new school building. The copper box contained a letter written by a Dr. Daniel Berry, dated 1876, the 100th year of U. S. independence

Books For Children

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

Boys with a love of adventure will be attracted to two new books in the Mansfield Public library children's department.

FOREST PATROL, by James Arthur Kjelgaard—John Belden was an orphan too poor to go to forestry school so he was saving his money, earned by trapping, for a one-year ranger course When a ranger friend of his took a year's leave John had a chance to take his place and to really be a ranger for a year. This is the story of his experiences in the Allegheny mountain back country fighting fires, killing outlaw animals, and conserving game. It is an exciting story for older boys.

YOUNG NORTHWEST, by Richard Montgomery—When the pioneers reached the end of the Oregon Trail they found a part of the country that was strange and new that had been visited by foreign sailors many years before. This book tells the story of the Pacific Northwest from the time of those early settlers until the present time showing the importance of the transcontinental railways and of the new power dams. A bright future is pictured for this resourceful territory at the end of the present war.

FAIR OR FOUL

By LAWTON CARVER

Pinch-Hitting for Rex Hess, Sport Podger.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—The surprise team of the 1942 season is likely to be the St. Louis Browns, and the A-1, deluxe, double-dipped, hand-turned astounder among the players seems to have been already elected in the person of Chester P. (Chet) Laabs, of those same Browns.

Just take a quick gander at the American league standings and you will get a rough idea as to why the club which in the past has battled so bitterly for a cozy berth in the second division currently is creating something of a commotion. The Browns, down-trodden and whip-sawed around for so many years, now are in fourth place and a combination of events late today and this evening could put them right in the middle of the contention for second and third place.

It works this way, the New York Yankees are out in front by 11 games over the Boston Red Sox, who in turn are one game ahead of the Cleveland Indians, who are three ahead of the Browns.

Beginning with this evening's twilight, Washington plays a double header at Cleveland and Boston two games at St. Louis.

By all manner of reasoning that makes the slightest sense, the Indians and Red Sox should get no worse than an even break in the two games, but suppose the Senators and Browns each manage to win two games. Then the Browns would be one game back of Cleveland and only two back of the second place Red Sox and that would be the beginning of a fine and lasting dog fight in that circuit for the runner-up spot behind the Yanks, assuming the latter quite definitely are headed for the pennant.

The Browns are clicking for a number of reasons, but none is more noteworthy at this time than Laabs. He is a none too robust outfielder of around 175 pounds, age 28, who in the past has been the delight of pitchers. But he has changed all that now and is the sparkplug in the rejuvenated Browns' machine.

* * *

The same gent who once struck out five times in a game against Bob Feller, now is regarded by Manager Luke Sewell as one of the two most valuable men on the club, the other being Infielder Vern Stephens.

Laabs can play any field—left, center or right—can throw and hustles all the way.

In a recent streak he hit seven home runs—plus several other extra base hits—in seven games to keep a winning streak going for the Browns, and he has been banging away right along even through yesterday when the Brownies took their 12th victory in their last 14 starts. Laabs contributed three hits, including a double.

While he hasn't yet advanced to a place among the league-leading hitters, he is just one home run behind Ted Williams' pace-setting 19, and he is third to Williams and Joe DiMaggio in runs batted in with 66.

* * *

He is almost certain to wind up this season with an average of .300 or better, in contrast with his past performances showing his best mark to be an even .300 in 1939. Last season he hit .278, but spiced his stick-work with one record-tying performance, when in a single game he smashed out two homers, a triple, and a double.

Kansas City Blues Lose to All-Stars

KANSAS CITY—(AP)—The bat of Fred Collins—a weighty willow with slight wear—was the only thing that stood between the Kansas City Blues and a whitewashing last night as the league leaders bowed to the American Association All-Star baseball team, 6 to 2.

The rangy first baseman slashed a long triple into right center and scampered on home on a wild relay toss for the first Kansas City counter. In the ninth, he teed off on another pitch of George Coffman, the St. Paul righthander, and parked it well over the right field fence to account for the other run.

The All-Star squad really sewed up the tilt, the third consecutive All-Star loss for Kansas City, in the first inning. They tallied four scores on two timely hits by Joe Bestudik of Indianapolis, and George Lacy of Louisville, and two untimely errors by the Kansas City infield.

ATLANTIC LEAGUE LEADERS ADVANCE

ZANESVILLE — (AP) — The Mid-Atlantic league three top teams bettered their standings last night.

Loop-leading Charleston trimmed Zanesville, 8 to 1, second place Erie defeated Springfield, 7 to 4, and Dayton edged Canton 3 to 1, to tighten its hold on third position.

BROWN WINS CROWN

LAKESIDE—(AP)—David Brown of Toledo is the new northern Ohio junior tennis king. He defeated Ed Ray of Taft, Tex., 6-4, 6-1 for the title yesterday. Ray took second in the round-robin contests and Jack Blanton of Houston, Tex., third. Matches to decide the doubles championship and other singles places are scheduled today.

Sewel Sparks Browns

Hailed Manager of Year as St. Louis Pushes Leaders.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

James Luther (Luke) Sewell, the 41-year-old pilot of the St. Louis Browns, is being spoken of these days as the manager of the year.

Probably no manager of a fourth place club ever has been considered for any such recognition before, but it has been a long time since the Browns have been in the first division at this extended stage of the American league pennant race.

The fact that the Browns now not only are in fourth place, but have won 12 of their last 14 contests and are just four games back of the second place Boston Red Sox, is a glowing tribute to the leadership of the soft-spoken University of Alabama alumnus.

* * *

The Browns have given up half a dozen players to the armed services, but in spite of this the club has improved due to judicious trading. Instead of selling off stars the club has been able to deal for its own benefit.

Besides skilful direction, Sewell has made one other recent move of importance to his club. He has put himself on the active list and caught parts of two games in the last week to give the veteran Rick Ferrell a rest while Frank Hayes is ailing.

* * *

Sewell worked five innings yesterday while the Browns went about beating the Philadelphia Athletics 9-6. Chet Laabs, who has developed into a star recently, made three hits and Vernon (Junior) Stephens, who has developed into one of the outstanding shortstops in the major leagues in one season under Sewell's guidance, contributed a homer.

* * *

The Boston Red Sox halted their losing streak by nosing out the Chicago White Sox 5-4 with two runs built around Dom DiMaggio's triple in the seventh inning after Joe Cronin and Pete Fox had homered in the fourth.

Washington whipped the Detroit Tigers again 5-3 for Alex Carrasquel's third triumph within a week.

In the National league the New York Giants took over undisputed possession of third-place by out-homering the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-4. Johnny Mize notched his 19th round tripper of the year. Vince DiMaggio hit a three-run homer for Pittsburgh.

* * *

In the only other contest scheduled, a night affair at Philadelphia, the last-place Phils knocked off the St. Louis Cardinals, 4-3, and put them seven games behind the league-leading Brooklyn Dodgers.

Pauls Edge Out Empires, 11-10

The Pauls eked out a close victory over the Empires by an 11-10 score last night at North Lake park as play continued in the Y. M. C. A. Boys' league.

Theesen of the Pauls and Hemperly of the Empires both poled out home runs, with the latter connecting all three times he was at bat.

Favorites In Arlington Classic

SHUT OUT — WITH REGARDS

Here are the favorites in the $85,000 Arlington Classic, three-year-old race to be run at Arlington race track, Chicago, tomorrow. They are Shut Out, the Kentucky Derby winner, and With Regards, the colt that recently won the Classic trial in record time.

Favor Shut Out At Arlington

Recent Wins Put Greentree Stable Entry on Top.

CHICAGO —(INS)— Victories of Shut Out in the Kentucky Derby and the Belmont stakes made the Greentree stable star favorite today for tomorrow's running of the $85,000 Arlington classic at Arlington park.

* * *

A dozen eligibles still were listed as possible starters in the rich event, with owner Al Sabath and trainer Sarge Swenke due to announce their postponed decision on whether or not to send their bargain counter colt, Alsab, out after the heavy purse.

* * *

Sabath said the colt never was better than now, the only reason for withdrawing him being the fact that he has had little training since recovery from a blind splint. The owner will have until 45 minutes before post time tomorrow to declare him out, but was expected to decide some time today.

With the veteran Eddie Arcaro upon Shut Out, conqueror of Alsab in the Kentucky Derby and Belmont stakes, the Greentree flash was rated today as a 2 to 1 favorite.

Mauriello Takes Burman

Tami Moves Nearer Top But Has Trouble in Winning.

NEW YORK—(UP)—Heavyweight Tami Mauriello and featherweight Lulu Costantino, both New Yorkers, were a notch closer to the tops of their divisions today, but neither had garnered much lustre in the rise.

Mauriello, rangy young Bronx Italian, scored a technical knockout over Red Burman, Baltimore veteran at 2:58 of the ninth round last night in the scheduled 10-round main event at Madison Square Garden.

* * *

But before Referee Frankie Fullman stopped the bout because of Burman's badly gashed left brow, ancient Baltimore Red had provided such unexpectedly stiff opposition that most of the 10,217 fans were convinced Mauriello will be a quick kayo victim if he ever meets Corp. Joe Louis.

* * *

Promoter Mike Jacobs will try to match 20-year-old Tami with Louis in September if Mauriello beats Lee Savold of Des Moines Aug. 20, and if the army permits Louis to defend his title.

* * *

Featherweight Costantino clinched a title shot with Champion Chalky Wright at the Garden, Sept. 25, by taking an unpopular split decision from Pedro Hernandez, Brooklyn Puerto Rican, in the 12-round semi-final —two rounds longer than the main event's scheduled distance.

300 Pheasants Released at Shelby

SHELBY—Some 304 pheasants have been released in this area by Charles Kimmel of Mansfield, Richland County game warden.

Raised by local residents in pens furnished by themselves, the pheasants were secured by the Shelby Conservation league from the state organization.

About 100 more pheasants will be released here later in the year. This will bring the total of birds released in this area to 500.

* * *

A number of black bass will be released in the Black Fork creek near Shelby in the near future by the state.

CLUTCH TOUGH

Lew Riggs has only slapped two doubles and a pair of homers and knocked in seven runs for his first ten inch-hit appearances this year . . . Which hardly comes under the heading of a slump . . . And do you suppose Bill Dickey's telling those Yankee pitchers to sorta take it easy on his kid brother? . . . 'Cause Skeets has banged the champ elbowers for a homer, a double and a pair of one-base knocks as a White Sox pinch-hitter this season.

Nelson, Little Lead Field

Veterans Turn in Identical Scores at Tam O' Shanter.

By GAYLE TALBOT

CHICAGO—(AP)—The Tam O'Shanter golf tournament, unlimited, made considerable sense today for a change, because Byron Nelson and Lawson Little, two of the game's great players, were winging along in front of the field in the $15,000 open event with identical scores of 67—five strokes under par—after the first round of the 72-hole contest.

This was the first really sane development of an otherwise daffy week at Tam O'Shanter.

Nelson, last year's winner here and possibly the finest medal player in the game today, shot his round early to get the jump on some 138 professionals and a flock of distracted amateurs, who were otherwise wrapped up in their own match-play championship.

Little, one of the most formidable match players in the world, came in just before dark last night to tie Nelson and establish his candidacy for the first prize of $2,500 that will be handed out Sunday. Things thus were closer to normal at Tam O'Shanter today than would have seemed possible 24 hours ago.

Gib Sellers of Walled Lake, Mich., was right behind the leaders with a 68, while Dick Metz and Clayton Heafner were next at 69. Ben Hogan, the game's consistent money winner, was in threatening position with a 71.

The amateurs, after two days of furious battle, had reduced themselves to a quartet—Marvin (Bud) Ward of Spokane, Wash., the national champion; John Holmstrom of Rockford, Ill., and Wilford Wehrle of Racine, Wis., and Mike Stolarik, storekeeper third class at the Great Lakes Naval Training station. In the 36-hole semi-final matches today Wehrle met Holmstrom and Ward tackled Stolarik.

Two defeated amateurs, Johnny Lehman of Chicago and Pat Abbott of Pasadena, led their compatriots in the open division of the tournament, each having shot a 71 in his first round yesterday. Ward had to go 23 holes to eliminate Earl Stewart, the '41 intercollegiate champion, in their third round match.

Reach Semi-Finals At Asheville

ASHEVILLE, N. C.—(INS)—Dorothy Kirby of Atlanta, favorite to take the crown for the third time, had Louise McWane of Birmingham, Ala., as her opponent today in the semi-finals of the Biltmore Forest invitational golf tournament.

Miss Kirby advanced without trouble, 8 and 6, in her match yesterday with Mrs. C. M. Swinney of Decatur, Ga. Miss McWane defeated Mrs. L. Kirkpatrick of St. Simmons Island, Ga., 1 up.

REDS TACKLE GIANTS

NEW YORK —(INS)— All rested up after a day off from their diamond duties, the Cincinnati Reds were in New York to engage the Giants today. Bucky Walters was slated to hurl for the Rhinelanders while Hal Schumacher was named probably opening pitcher for the Giants.

Indians Stop Yankees

Dean, Heving Snap Champs' Win Streak at 11 Games.

(By Associated Press)

HAVING discovered a system for beating the New York Yankees, the Cleveland Indians seek new fields to conquer, and already have picked one — the twilight-night double header, which they initiate at the stadium tonight.

* * *

The combination which beat the world champions, 3 to 2 in 11 innings yesterday, consisted of pitching by Chubby Dean for nine frames and Joe Heving for two, and a lot of timely hitting after two were out in the ninth.

Tonight's inaugural of evening twin-bills brings Washington here for a game at 6 p. m. and another which will not start before 8:45; regardless of when the first contest ends.

In winning the final of a three-game series here with New York, the Redskins robbed Ernie Bonham of a shut out. Dean permitted the Yanks to score one run in the second inning on two singles and Phil Rizzuto's double, and another tally in the third on Tommy Henrich's double and Joe DiMaggio's single.

DiMaggio singled again in the ninth for the only other safety off the heavy-hitting southpaw hurler.

The Indians, held to six hits and no runs by big Ernie, were two down in the ninth inning when Rizzuto made a low throw on Jim Hegan's bounder. Dean singled to right, sending Hegan to third, and then retired for a pinch runner. Successive singles by Roy Weathely and Lou Boudreau drove in two runs which tied the score, and Marv Breuer replaced Bonham. Kenny Keltner fouled to end the inning.

Heving, the ultimate winner, went to the mound for Cleveland and gave up one hit in each of the 10th and 11th frames. Fireman Johnny Murphy, who replaced Breuer, sent the Tribe down in order in the 10th.

Oscar Grimes opened the 11th frame by beating out a grounder to third. Hegan sacrificed and Otto Denning, batting for Heving, singled Grimes home.

TROSKY MAY RETURN IN YANK UNIFORM

CLEVELAND — (UP) — Hal Trosky, former slugging first baseman of the Cleveland Indians, may return to baseball next season, possibly wearing the uniform of the New York Yankees.

This speculation on Trosky's baseball future made the rounds today after it became known that the New York management is interested in acquiring him to bolster its infield. Trosky retired from baseball voluntarily this season because of chronic headaches.

Bivins Kayoes Buffalo Lad

Muscato 'Couldn't Get Arms Working,' Drops in Fifth.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Joe Muscato, a slugging preliminary boy who tagged Lem Franklin with a kayo punch, knows a hero's hours may be short.

It was only a month ago when the one-time army sergeant proved Franklin has a glass chain. So Jo was matched with Jimmy Bivins, the Cleveland negro who also throws heavy leather, and 8,183 people paid their way into Cleveland arena last night to see whether he could take it.

Muscato couldn't. At 186, the 21-year-old Buffalo (N. Y.) heavyweight had a ten-pound advantage over Bivins and managed to take two of the first three rounds. Then came the lightning.

A left parked the Buffalo boy on the floor for a nine count. He arose, and a right sent him down again, with only the bell saving him.

Before Muscato emerged for the fifth round of a scrap carded for ten, the customers were convinced he wouldn't be around long.

Two rights to the stomach and a left to the chin produced a third nine count, and a few seconds later Joe went down for the last time. He climbed up from the floor, but he didn't appear too anxious to beat Referee Joe Sedley's "ten" and he didn't. "I just couldn't get my arms working," Muscato said later.

The night's only consolaton for the beaten scrapper was that his brother Phil, at 160 pounds, reversed a recent knockout loss and took a seven-round decision from Johnny Lawer, 158, of Cleveland.

Other results on the card which produced an $18,514 gate were: Billy Murray, 140, Bellaire, O., decisioned Harry Teaney, 139, Cleveland, in eight rounds; Charley Hayes, 161, Detroit, beat Harold Dettman, 165, Cleveland, in a five-rounder; Bobby Richardson, 148, Cleveland, scored a technical kayo over Billy Seep, 140, Buffalo; and Sammy Derrico, 134, Cleveland, outboxed Fred Burnhard, 134, Akron, in five rounds.

LOWER TRENDS PERSISTING ON STOCK MARKET

Retail Spending Down Three To Six Per Cent Over Entire Nation.

NEW YORK — (AP) — Lower trends persisted in today's stock market.

Off fractionally were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, American Telephone, Westinghouse, U. S. Rubber, Union Carbide, Goodrich, Chesapeake and Ohio and Sears Roebuck.

Merchandising shares had to contend with further signs of a flattening out of the retail spending curve. Dun and Bradstreet estimated this week's dollar volume for the nation as a whole was down 3 to 6 per cent from the comparable 1941 period.

Notice was taken of the Federal Reserve board summary disclosing the country's department store sales for the week ended July 18 exceeded the corresponding week last year by 5 per cent. The year-to-year increase in the week concluded July 11 was placed at 10 per cent.

3,000 CHANNEL CATFISH FREED IN LAKES HERE

Ohio Conservation Department Releases Fish at Charles Mill, Pleasant Hill.

Distribution of 3,000 more channel catfish in Charles Mill and Pleasant Hill lakes by the Ohio Division of Conservation and Natural resources was announced today by Gordon Ensminger, president of the Richland County Fish and Game Protective association.

At the same time, Ensminger said the county sportsmen's organization will obtain 25,000 largemouth bass during the first week of August to stock Richland county lakes and streams next year. The fingerling bass will be kept in four rearing ponds in the county for a year and then released when they are from six to eight inches long.

The 3,000 catfish, brought to the county by Jack Rodebaugh, state fish management agent, were divided equally between Charles Mill and Pleasant Hill lakes. The fish averaged about 11 inches long.

Rodebaugh threw cold water on the County Fish and Game association's plan to place some perch in Pleasant Hill lake, explaining that perch never grow very large in Ohio lakes and they compete with more desirable fish for food and space

"Perch have been planted in most of the larger Ohio lakes, yet they represent only a small per cent of the fish caught, and they are usually midgets," Rodebaugh said.

He said Pleasant Hill lake, which is being developed rapidly as good fishing waters, has eight common varieties of fish. About half are carp, suckers, and guillbacks, classed as undesirable fish. The other half includes catfish, placed at 18 per cent; bluegills and crappies 15 per cent each; bass and walleyes, about one per cent each.
